CQ House Votes 88 through 92.

House Defeats AEC Powerline Bill; Approves Summer Job Allotment; Clears Cigarette Labeling Bill; Passes Coinage Revision Measure

88. HR 8856. Amend the Atomic Energy Act of 1954 to clarify federal, state and local powers to regulate electricity generated, sold or transmitted by the Atomic Energy Commission. Holifield (D Calif.) motion to suspend the rules and pass the bill (two-thirds majority required). Rejected 216-139: R 11-107; D 205-32 (ND 145-10; SD 60-22), July 12, 1965 (237 "yeas" were needed for passage). The President did not take a position on the bill. (See story p. 899; for passage of the bill, see RC 102.)

89. HR 242. Require that temporary summer jobs in Government agencies in the Washington, D.C., area be apportioned among residents of the 50 states. (The Administration opposed the bill on grounds that the existing requirement that permanent jobs be apportioned was obsolete and impossible to carry out. Similar bills were passed by the House in 1962 and 1963, but were not acted on by the Senate. (1962 Almanac p. 642; 1963 Almanac p. 402) Passed 336-22: R 116-4; D 220-18 (ND 144-11; SD 76-7), July 12, 1965. The President did not take a position on the bill.

90. S 559. Adoption of the conference report on the Federal Cigarette Labeling Act to: require that cigarette packages and cartons bear this statement: "Caution: Cigarette Smoking May Be Hazardous to Your Health;" prohibit any other warning requirement on the packages and prohibit until July 1, 1969, any requirements that cigarette advertising include a similar health warning. Adopted 286-103: R 116-15; D 170-88 (ND 87-85; SD 83-3), July 13, 1965. The President did not take a position on the bill. (See story p. 344)

91. HR 8926. Coinage Act of 1965. Battin (R Mont.) amendment to retain 40 percent silver in dimes and quarters. Rejected 187-218: R 96-37; D 91-181 (ND 44-139; SD 47-42), July 14, 1965. A "nay" vote was a vote supporting the President's position. (See story, p. 882)

92. HR 8926. Passage of the bill providing for the minting of dimes and quarters made of a copper-nickel alloy without silver, and for the minting of half dollars containing 40 percent silver. Passed 255-151: R 36-97; D 219-54 (ND 162-21; SD 57-33) July 14, 1965. A "yea" vote was a vote supporting the President's position.

CQ House Votes 111 through 114.

House Extends Interest Equalization Tax for 19 Months; Votes D.C. Insurance Bill; Prohibits Destroying or Mutilating of Draft Cards

111. HR 4750. Interest Equalization Tax Extension Act. Adoption of H Res 498, a closed rule (preventing floor amendments) for floor consideration of HR 4750 (below). Adopted 329-44: R 80-41; D 249-3 (ND 165-3; SD 84-0), Aug. 5, 1965. A "yea" was a vote supporting the President's position. (See story p. 870)

112. HR 4750. Interest Equalization Tax Extension Act of 1965. Passage of the bill to extend the tax for 19 months (from Dec. 31, 1965, through July 31, 1967) and broaden its coverage to include purchases by Americans of foreign bonds with a maturity period of one to three years. Passed 274-97: R 32-90; D 242-7 (ND 159-7; SD 83-0), Aug. 5, 1965. A "yea" was a vote supporting the President's position.

113. HR 9918. D.C. Motor Vehicle Insurance Protection from Uninsured Drivers. Sickles (D Md.) amendment to provide new text for HR 9918. Sickles amendment created an unsatisfied judgment claims fund into which all uninsured District of Columbia resident motorists must pay $40. It also required all insured drivers to include in their policies protection against injuries and property damage caused by uninsured drivers. HR 9918 required motorists who were involved in serious accidents or traffic violations to post a $500 deposit and did not require insured motorists to carry protection against uninsured motorists. Sickles substitute text accepted 173-156: R 39-66; D 134-90 (ND 119-22; SD 15-68), Aug. 9, 1965. The President did not take a position on the amendment.

114. HR 10306. Amend the Universal Military Training and Service Act of 1951 to make it a crime to knowingly destroy or mutilate a draft card. Passed 393-1: R 129-1; D 264-0 (ND 174-0; SD 90-0), Aug. 10, 1965. The President did not take a position on the bill. (See story p. 689)

CQ House Votes 143 through 148.

House Takes Five Additional Roll-Call Votes on Procedural Matters; Adopts Rule to Permit Action on Equal Employment Opportunity Bill

143. Albert (D Okla.) motion that the Journal be approved as read. Agreed to 265-119: R 49-78; D 216-41 (ND 171-1; SD 45-40), Sept. 13, 1965. The President did not take a position on the motion. (See story on 21-day rule, p. 585)

144. McMillan (D S.C.) motion that the House adjourn. (A motion to adjourn takes precedence over other business; it was offered after the Speaker recognized House Education and Labor Committee Chairman Adam C. Powell (D N.Y.) for the purpose of calling up H Res 506 -- See RC 145.) Rejected 175-204: R 105-23; D 70-181 (ND 6-162; SD 64-19), Sept. 13, 1965. The President did not take a position on the motion.

145. H Res 506. Open rule for floor consideration of HR 10065, a bill to broaden and strengthen Title VII of the 1964 Civil Rights Act banning employment discrimination based on race, color, religion, sex or national origin. (The resolution was considered under the 21-day rule which permitted bills to be brought to the House floor for action by a committee member when a rule had not been granted by the Rules Committee.) Adopted 259-121: R 76-51; D 183-70 (ND 166-2; SD 17-68), Sept. 13, 1965. The President did not take a position on the rule. (For story on HR 10065, see p. 572)

146. H Res 506. Albert (D Okla.) motion to table (kill) a motion by McCulloch (R Ohio) to reconsider the vote by which H Res 506 was adopted (RC 145, above). Tabling motion agreed to 194-181: R 8-118; D 186-63 (ND 165-1; SD 21-62), Sept. 13, 1965. The President did not take a position on the motion.

147. Sikes (D Fla.) motion that the House adjourn. Rejected 173-203: R 106-20; D 67-183 (ND 8-158; SD 59-25), Sept. 13, 1965. The President did not take a position on the motion.

148. McFall (D Calif.) motion to dispense with further proceedings under the seventh quorum call of the day. Agreed to 243-136: R 36-88; D 207-48 (ND 167-2; SD 40-46), Sept. 13, 1965. The President did not take a position on the motion.

CQ House Votes 171 through 176.

House Takes Up Administration's D.C. Home Rule Measure, Defeats Moves To Kill Bill; Approves Sisk's Substitute Charter Board Plan

171. HR 4644. District of Columbia Charter Act. Adoption of an open rule (H Res 515) providing for five hours of debate on the bill. Adopted 223-179: R 35-95; D 188-84 (ND 172-13; SD 16-71), Sept. 27, 1965. A "yea" was a vote supporting the President's position. (See story p. 613)

172. HR 4644. Multer (D N.Y.) motion that the House resolve itself into the Committee on the Whole for consideration of HR 4644. Agreed to 234-155: R 46-80; D 188-75 (ND 171-8; SD 17-67), Sept. 27, 1965. A "yea" was a vote supporting the President's position.

173. HR 4644. Hays (D Ohio) motion to strike the enacting clause (kill the bill). Rejected 179-219: R 93-34; D 86-185 (ND 17-165; SD 69-20), Sept. 29, 1965. A "nay" was a vote supporting the President's position.

174. HR 4644. Multer (D N.Y.) amendment, as amended by Sisk (D Calif.) substitute, providing for election of a District of Columbia Charter Board, if D.C. voters favored home rule in a referendum, to draw up a charter which would be submitted to D.C. voters in another referendum and, if approved, would take effect in 90 days if not disapproved by either chamber of Congress. (The original Multer amendment would have substituted for HR 4644 the provisions of a Senate bill (S 1118) modified to provide for annual Congressional appropriation of the federal payment, election of the Mayor and Council for four-year terms in non-Presidential election years, changes in D.C. voter requirements and authority for the President to use federal troops or take over local police.) Accepted 227-174: R 105-23; D 122-151 (ND 50-134; SD 72-17), Sept. 29, 1965. A "nay" was a vote supporting the President's position.

175. HR 4644. O'Konski (R Wis.) motion to recommit (kill) the bill. Rejected 134-267: R 62-66; D 72-201 (ND 6-177; SD 66-24), Sept. 29, 1965. A "nay" was a vote supporting the President's position.

176. HR 4644. Passage of the bill, providing for election of a D.C. Charter Board, if D.C. voters favored home rule in a referendum, to draw up a charter which would be submitted to D.C. voters in another referendum and, if approved, would take effect in 90 days if not disapproved by either chamber of Congress. Passed 283-117: R 86-42; D 197-75 (ND 174-8; SD 23-67), Sept. 29, 1965. The President did not take a position on the bill.

House Approves New Foreign and Domestic Sugar Act Quotas After Adopting Rule and Rejecting Fees on Imported Sugar

191. HR 11135. Sugar Act Amendments of 1965. Adoption of a rule permitting two floor amendments to be offered -- one establishing a special import fee on sugar, the other banning foreign sugar lobbyists. Rule adopted 253-80: R 81-34; D 172-46 (ND 105-41; SD 67-5), Oct. 12, 1965. The President did not take a position on the rule. (See story p. 140)

192. HR 11135. Harvey (R Ind.) motion to recommit the bill to the House Agriculture Committee with instructions to add a special fee on sugar imports, except from the Philippines, equal to the lesser of 1 cent a pound or 50 percent of the difference between the high U.S. raw sugar price and the lower world price. Rejected 160-230: R 112-10; D 48-220 (ND 40-139; SD 8-81), Oct. 13, 1965. A "nay" was a vote supporting the President's position.

193. HR 11135. Passage of the bill, establishing new domestic and foreign sugar quotas for the period ending Dec. 31, 1971. Passed 246-147: R 56-67; D 190-80 (ND 110-71; SD 80-9), Oct. 13, 1965. The President did not take a position on the bill. (For final vote, see RC 201)

Senate Passes Water Pollution Control Bill 68-8, Rejects Amendment To Bar Establishment of Mandatory Federal Water Quality Standards

1. S 4. Federal Water Pollution Control Act amendments expanding federal financial assistance and regulatory action to combat and prevent water pollution. Tower (R Texas) amendment to substitute for the provisions of S 4 new provisions, similar in most respects, but without the authority (contained in S 4) for the Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare to promulgate federal standards of water quality. Rejected 15-62: R 12-13; D 3-49 (ND 0-36; SD 3-13), Jan. 28, 1965. The President did not take a position on the amendment. (See story p. 743)

2. S 4. Cooper (R Ky.) amendment to substitute for language in the bill wording which more specifically defined the authority of the HEW Secretary in establishing water quality standards and the procedures he was to follow. (The language the amendment replaced also authorized the Secretary to establish quality standards, but under less specific procedural and other requirements.) Rejected 29-54: R 19-6; D 10-48 (ND 1-39; SD 9-9), Jan. 28, 1965. The President did not take a position on the amendment.

3. S 4. Muskie (D Maine) amendment to require that the establishment of federal water quality standards be done in conformity with the Administrative Procedure Act. Adopted 75-0: R 23-0; D 52-0 (ND 35-0; SD 17-0), Jan. 28, 1965. The President did not take a position on the amendment.

4. S 4. Long (D La.) amendment to require that the results (such as patents and processes) of water pollution research projects financed in whole or in part by federal funds be freely available to the public. Adopted 50-28: R 1-24; D 49-4 (ND 39-0; SD 10-4), Jan. 28, 1965. The President did not take a position on the amendment.

5. S 4. Passage of the bill to authorize $20 million annually for fiscal 1965-68 for grants to states and municipalities to demonstrate improved methods of controlling water pollution from storm and sanitary sewers, and to provide other means of increased federal participation in preventing, controlling and abating pollution of interstate and navigable water. Passed 68-8: R 18-6; D 50-2 (ND 38-0; SD 12-2), Jan. 28, 1965. A "yea" was a vote supporting the President's position.

10. S 701. International Coffee Agreement Act of 1965 to enable the United States to carry out its obligations under the International Coffee Agreement of 1962 by authorizing the President to require certificates of origin for all coffee shipments and to limit coffee imports from countries not participating in the Agreement. Passed 56-23: R 14-13; D 42-10 (ND 30-8; SD 12-2) Feb. 2, 1965. A "yea" was a vote supporting the President's position. (See story p. 483; for later vote, see RC 55.)

Accepted 44-38: R 6-21; D 38-17 (ND 27-11; SD 11-6), Feb. 3, 1965. A "yea" was a vote in support of the President's position.

Long (D La.) substitute for pending Morse amendment (below) stating the sense of Congress that during any period when U.S. foreign aid to any member country of the Bank was suspended (under another law) because the country did not provide appropriate compensation for expropriation of American property, the U.S. representative in the Bank shall vote against any loans to that country from the Fund for Special Operations. Rejected 34-48; R 4-21; D 30-27 (ND 20-18; SD 10-9), Feb. 25, 1965. The President did not take a position on the amendment. (See story p. 492)

22. HR 45. Morse (D Ore.) amendment to require the United States to use its voting power in the Bank to disapprove any loan from the Fund for Special Operations for any project, enterprise or activity in any country which had expropriated American property and failed within a reasonable period of time to take appropriate steps to provide compensation. Accepted 60-22; R 21-4; D 39-18 (ND 26-12; SD 13-6), Feb. 25, 1965. The President did not take a position on the amendment.

Rejected 37-44: R 18-7; D 19-37 (ND 11-27; SD 8-10), Feb. 25, 1965. A "nay" was a vote supporting the President's position.

Passage of the bill to amend the Inter-American Development Bank Act of 1959 to authorize a $750 million increase in the U.S. contribution to the Bank's Fund for Special Operations ($250 million per year in fiscal 1965, 1966 and 1967). Passed 67-14: R 20-5; D 47-9 (ND 35-3; SD 12-6) Feb. 25, 1965. A "yea" was a vote supporting the President's position.

Senate Rejects Voting Bill Amendment to Prevent Use of Poll Taxes In Elections, Other Changes; Clears Coffee Pact Bill for President

52. S 1564. Voting Rights Act of 1965. Kennedy (D Mass.) amendment to prohibit the collection of a poll tax as a condition for registration or voting in state or local elections and to authorize enforcement machinery; the amendment stipulated that if the Congressional ban on poll taxes were upset in court, no person could be denied the right to vote during the period of a year after the entry of a final judgment in such an action because of his failure to pay a poll tax or to make timely payment if he had paid the tax due for one year, within a period of 45 days prior to an election. (The amendment deleted Section 9 of the bill, which authorized the Attorney General to institute proceedings for relief against enforcement of state poll taxes as a condition for voting when such tax had the purpose or effect of denying a person the right to vote.) Rejected 45-49: R 6-25; D 39-24 (ND 34-9; SD 5-15), May 11, 1965. A "nay" was a vote supporting the President's position. (See story p. 533. Votes continue on next five charts.)

53. S 1564. Ervin (D N.C.) amendment to shift the jurisdiction in certain judicial proceedings arising under the bill from the federal district court in the District of Columbia to the federal district court for the district in which the capital of a state was located or a political subdivision was situated. Rejected 28-62: R 10-20; D 18-42 (ND 2-38; SD 16-4), May 12, 1965. A "nay" was a vote supporting the President's position.

54. S 1564. Sparkman (D Ala.) amendment to delete language which required a federal examiner to place on a list of eligible voters any person meeting state law qualifications not inconsistent with the U.S. Constitution and U.S. law and instead to require the person be placed on the list if he simply met state law qualifications; the amendment also deleted wording which directed the Civil Service Commission, after consultation with the Attorney General, to instruct examiners about applicable state law in regard to qualifications required for listing and loss of eligibility to vote. Rejected 19-66: R 5-25; D 14-41 (ND 1-36; SD 13-5), May 13, 1965. The President did not take a position on the amendment.

55. S 701. International Coffee Agreement Act of 1965 to enable the United States to carry out its obligations under the International Coffee Agreement of 1962. Byrd (D Va.) motion to concur in the House amendments to the bill and thereby clear it for the President's signature. Adopted 61-19: R 20-10; D 41-9 (ND 28-4; SD 13-5), May 13, 1965. A "yea" was a vote supporting the President's position. (See story p. 483)

Rejected 14-53: R 2-20; D 12-33 (ND 0-30; SD 12-3), May 14, 1965. A "nay" was a vote supporting the President's position.

Senate Adds Congressional Poll Tax Declaration to Voting Bill, Permits Naming of Poll Watchers, Approves Voting-Test Section

60. S 1564. Voting Rights Act of 1965. Mansfield (D Mont.) - Dirksen (R Ill.) amendment to add to the bill a declaration of Congress that, in view of evidence presented, the requirement of the payment of poll taxes in certain states as a condition of voting denied or abridged the right to vote; in addition, to direct the Attorney General to institute court action against the enforcement of any poll tax, or any substitute for a poll tax enacted after Nov. 1, 1964. (The amendment was a substitute for a section which directed the Attorney General to institute court action against enforcement of poll taxes.) Accepted 69-20: R 22-4; D 47-16 (ND 41-1; SD 6-15), May 19, 1965. The President did not take a position on the amendment. (See story p. 533)

61. S 1564. Fong (R Hawaii) amendment to authorize the Attorney General to assign poll watchers in voting districts to which federal examiners were assigned; authorize such poll watchers to enter and attend any place at which voting or tabulation of votes was conducted in order to observe whether all persons entitled to vote were allowed to do so and that their ballots were properly tabulated. Accepted 56-25: R 15-9; D 41-16 (ND 37-0; SD 4-16), May 19, 1965. The President did not take a position on the amendment.

62. S 1564. Kennedy (D N.Y.) - Javits (R N.Y.) amendment to specify that a person can not be denied the right to vote because of an inability to read or write in English if he demonstrates that he had successfully completed the sixth grade (or another grade level equivalent to whatever level of education a state demands) in a school under the American flag that is conducted in a language other than English. Accepted 48-19: R 6-9; D 42-10 (ND 32-2; SD 10-8), May 20, 1965. The President did not take a position on the amendment. (Votes continue on next three charts.)

Senate Invokes Voting Bill Cloture, Rejects Four More Amendments; Refuses to Disapprove Plan Ending Customs Bureau Patronage Jobs

63. S Res 102. Resolution disapproving President Johnson's Reorganization Plan No. 1 of 1965 to reorganize the Bureau of Customs by eliminating 53 positions currently filled by Presidential appointment, thus placing the Bureau on a career basis. Resolution of disapproval rejected 17-64: R 6-20; D 11-44 (ND 7-30; SD 4-14), May 24, 1965. A "nay" was a vote supporting the President's position. (See story p. 658)

64. S 1564. Voting Rights Act of 1965. Ervin (D N.C.) amendment to permit the federal district court for the District of Columbia to shift cases filed by state and local governments for relief from the federal examiners machinery, from its jurisdiction to the jurisdiction of federal courts in the petitioners' own areas. Rejected 32-49: R 14-13; D 18-36 (ND 2-34; SD 16-2), May 24, 1965. The President did not take a position on the amendment. (See story p. 533)

65. S 1564. Tower (R Texas) amendment to authorize the Attorney General to initiate investigations of voting practices in counties or states whenever he received 25 or more written complaints from residents of such areas alleging that they had been denied the ballot and, if such an investigation revealed a pattern or practice of discrimination, authorize the appointment of federal voting examiners to order the registration of voters in the area; the amendment deleted the "automatic" triggering formulas in the bill. Rejected 29-49: R 14-12; D 15-37 (ND 1-33; SD 14-4), May 24, 1965. A "nay" was a vote supporting the President's position.

66. S 1564. Miller (R Iowa) amendment to substitute for the bill's "automatic" triggering formulas for the appointment of federal voting examiners, a procedure authorizing the assignment of examiners when the Attorney General proved in the federal district court for the District of Columbia that a state or political subdivision maintained a literacy test or similar device and/or had unacceptable levels of voter activity, as defined by the bill. Rejected 30-66: R 12-19; D 18-47 (ND 1-42; SD 17-5), May 25, 1965. A "nay" was a vote supporting the President's position.

67. S 1564. Hart (D Mich.) motion that the Senate invoke cloture on debate on the voting rights bill. Cloture motion adopted 70-30: R 23-9; D 47-21 (ND 42-4; SD 5-17), May 25, 1965. With all 100 Senators present and voting, 67 votes were needed for cloture. A "yea" was a vote supporting the President's position.

68. S 1564. Ervin amendment to require that a person applying to a federal examiner to be registered to vote include an allegation that he had been denied registration or had been found not qualified to vote because "of his race or color." (The amendment added the "race or color" wording to the provision, which was already in the bill. The amendment also deleted the authority of the Attorney General to require other allegations as he decided were necessary.) Rejected 26-74: R 7-25; D 19-49 (ND 2-44; SD 17-5), May 25, 1965. A "nay" was a vote supporting the President's position. (Voting bill roll calls continue on next page)

Senate Rejects Ervin Voting Bill Amendments on Exempting Areas From Registration Machinery, Court Authority, Triggering Formula

69. S 1564. Voting Rights Act of 1965. Ervin (D N.C.) amendment to free from the federal registration machinery any political subdivision in which 95 percent of persons applying for registration in the 1964 Presidential election were literate and were registered by election officials. 70. S 1564. Ervin amendment to exempt states or political subdivisions from the federal registration machinery when the Attorney General certified that past denials of the right to vote had been corrected by state or local action and that there was no reasonable cause to believe that any test or device sought to be used by such state or local government would be used for the purpose or would have the effect of discriminating against voters. Rejected 28-63: R 12-20; D 16-43 (ND 1-39; SD 15-4), May 25, 1965. A "nay" was a vote supporting the President's position.

71. S 1564. Ervin amendment to stipulate that jurisdiction of the federal district court in the District of Columbia over proceedings brought by states or political subdivisions to free themselves of the federal registration machinery would terminate in case judgment were rendered in favor of the petitioning state or local government. (The amendment altered a provision which authorized the court to retain jurisdiction for five years in all such cases.) Rejected 25-68: R 10-22; D 15-46 (ND 1-41; SD 14-5), May 25, 1965. A "nay" was a vote supporting the President's position.

72. S 1564. Ervin amendment to stipulate that a state or political subdivision in which examiners had been appointed could free itself from the bill's coverage by proving in federal district court in the District of Columbia that it was not discriminating against voters at the time of its appeal to the court. Rejected 26-69; R 9-23; D 17-46 (ND 1-41; SD 16-5), May 25, 1965. A "nay" was a vote supporting the President's position.

73. S 1564. Ervin amendment to eliminate from the bill's triggering formula the requirement that voter turnout of a state or political subdivision in the 1964 Presidential election had to be more than 50 percent of the voting age population in order to avoid appointment of federal voting examiners to the area. Rejected 31-64: R 13-19; D 18-45 (ND 1-41; SD 17-4), May 25, 1965. A "nay" was a vote supporting the President's position.

74. S 1564. Ervin amendment to provide for judicial review by federal district courts of a decision by the Attorney General rejecting the petition of a political subdivision to free itself of the federal registration machinery; the amendment stipulated that if the court found that the petitioning government was no longer discriminating against voters, the court would enter a judgment terminating the appointment of federal examiners in the locality. Rejected 24-72; R 4-28; D 20-44 (ND 3-40; SD 17-4), May 25, 1965. A "nay" was a vote supporting the President's position. (Voting bill roll calls continue on next page)

Senate Rejects Amendments on Court Jurisdiction, Demonstrations; Passes Voting Rights Bill; Votes Interior Department Appropriations

75. S 1564. Voting Rights Act of 1965. Ervin (D N.C.) amendment to delete language providing that only the federal district court for the District of Columbia or a federal court of appeals would have jurisdiction to issue a judgment freeing a state or local government from the federal registration machinery, or to issue restraining orders, or temporary or permanent injunctions under the bill. Rejected 20-75: R 4-28; D 16-47 (ND 1-43; SD 15-4), May 25, 1965. A "nay" was a vote supporting the President's position. (See story p. 533)

76. S 1564. Stennis (D Miss.) amendment to instruct the Attorney General, upon request of appropriate state or local authorities, to institute proceedings for relief against demonstrations by persons other than those who have been denied the right to vote within the area of the demonstration. Rejected 17-74: R 2-30; D 15-44 (ND 1-39; SD 14-5), May 25, 1965. The President did not take a position on the amendment.

77. S 1564. Mansfield (D Mont.) -- Dirksen (R Ill.) amendment providing a substitute for the bill reported April 9 by the Senate Judiciary Committee; the major differences were that the substitute included a Congressional declaration that state poll taxes discriminated against the right to vote and dropped certain provisions allowing states to free themselves from the bill. Adopted 78-18: R 31-1; D 47-17 (ND 42-0; SD 5-17), May 26, 1965. A "yea" was a vote supporting the President's position.

78. S 1564. Passage of the Voting Rights Act, suspending the use of literacy tests or similar voter qualification devices in certain states and areas and authorizing the appointment of federal voting examiners to order the registration of Negroes in states and voting districts whose voter activity had fallen below certain specified levels; the bill also contained a Congressional declaration that state poll taxes discriminated against the right to vote and directed the Attorney General to institute court actions against such taxes; the bill further authorized machinery to enforce its provisions. Passed 77-19: R 30-2; D 47-17 (ND 42-0; SD 5-17), May 26, 1965. A "yea" was a vote supporting the President's position.

79. HR 6767. Fiscal 1966 Appropriations Bill for the Interior Department and related agencies. Passage of the bill making definite appropriations of $1,092,568,770, estimating indefinite appropriations at $138,234,000 including $125 million from the Land and Water Conservation Fund, and setting the borrowing authority for the Interior Department's helium program at $16 million. Passed 77-0: R 25-0; D 52-0 (ND 33-0; SD 19-0), May 26, 1965. The President did not take a position on the bill. (See story p. 204)

CQ Senate Votes 218 through 222.

Senate Adopts New Farm Bill Cotton Provisions; Deletes Transfer Of Control Over Foreign Farm Workers; Accepts Milk Amendment

218. HR 9811. Food and Agriculture Act of 1965. Talmadge (D Ga.) substitute for cotton provisions of bill as reported by the Senate Agriculture and Forestry Committee. The amendment provided a four-year (1966-69) cotton program designed to lower the market price of cotton while maintaining farmers' income through direct payments. The price support loan rate for cotton was set at 21 cents a pound in 1966, compared to a minimum of 29 cents in 1965. (The price support loan rate tends to establish the domestic market price level.) After 1966, the price support loan rate would be 90 percent of the world market price in the preceding year. Farmers would also get direct payments on that part of their production which went into domestic markets. These payments would be designed to guarantee a minimum average price of 65 percent of parity (about 27.1 cents a pound) on all they produced. Accepted 62-24: R 23-7; D 39-17 (ND 28-8; SD 11-9), Sept. 10, 1965. A "yea" was a vote supporting the President's position. (See story p. 114)

219. HR 9811. Bass (D Tenn.) amendment to delete from the bill a provision transferring authority over importation of foreign farm workers in the United States from the Secretary of Labor to the Secretary of Agriculture. Accepted 46-45 (the 46th "yea" vote was cast by Vice President Humphrey to break a tie): R 2-28; D 43-17 (ND 36-6; SD 7-11), Sept. 13, 1965. A "yea" was a vote supporting the President's position.

220. HR 9811. Pastore (D R.I.) motion to table (kill) a motion by Bass (D Tenn.) to reconsider the vote by which Bass amendment (above) was accepted. Adopted 45-44: R 2-28; D 43-16 (ND 36-5; SD 7-11), Sept. 13, 1965. A "yea" was a vote supporting the President's position.

221. HR 9811. Proxmire (D Wis.) amendment to provide a "Class I Base Plan" under federal milk marketing orders, under which dairy farmers selling in federally regulated milk market areas would receive individual quotas limiting the amount of milk they could sell for fluid (Class I) use at premium prices. Accepted 57-27: R 11-16; D 46-11 (ND 33-8; SD 13-3), Sept. 13, 1965. The President did not take a position on the amendment.

222. HR 9811. Brewster (D Md.) amendment putting a $25,000 annual ceiling on price support loans and payments any producer could receive under the bill. Rejected 33-56: R 11-18; D 22-38 (ND 20-18; SD 2-20), Sept. 14, 1965. The President did not take a position on the amendment. (See RC 223, 224 on next chart)

CQ Senate Votes 218 through 222.

Senate Adopts New Farm Bill Cotton Provisions; Deletes Transfer Of Control Over Foreign Farm Workers; Accepts Milk Amendment

218. HR 9811. Food and Agriculture Act of 1965. Talmadge (D Ga.) substitute for cotton provisions of bill as reported by the Senate Agriculture and Forestry Committee. The amendment provided a four-year (1966-69) cotton program designed to lower the market price of cotton while maintaining farmers' income through direct payments. The price support loan rate for cotton was set at 21 cents a pound in 1966, compared to a minimum of 29 cents in 1965. (The price support loan rate tends to establish the domestic market price level.) After 1966, the price support loan rate would be 90 percent of the world market price in the preceding year. Farmers would also get direct payments on that part of their production which went into domestic markets. These payments would be designed to guarantee a minimum average price of 65 percent of parity (about 27.1 cents a pound) on all they produced. Accepted 62-24: R 23-7; D 39-17 (ND 28-8; SD 11-9), Sept. 10, 1965. A "yea" was a vote supporting the President's position. (See story p. 114)

219. HR 9811. Bass (D Tenn.) amendment to delete from the bill a provision transferring authority over importation of foreign farm workers in the United States from the Secretary of Labor to the Secretary of Agriculture. Accepted 46-45 (the 46th "yea" vote was cast by Vice President Humphrey to break a tie): R 2-28; D 43-17 (ND 36-6; SD 7-11), Sept. 13, 1965. A "yea" was a vote supporting the President's position.

220. HR 9811. Pastore (D R.I.) motion to table (kill) a motion by Bass (D Tenn.) to reconsider the vote by which Bass amendment (above) was accepted. Adopted 45-44: R 2-28; D 43-16 (ND 36-5; SD 7-11), Sept. 13, 1965. A "yea" was a vote supporting the President's position.

221. HR 9811. Proxmire (D Wis.) amendment to provide a "Class I Base Plan" under federal milk marketing orders, under which dairy farmers selling in federally regulated milk market areas would receive individual quotas limiting the amount of milk they could sell for fluid (Class I) use at premium prices. Accepted 57-27: R 11-16; D 46-11 (ND 33-8; SD 13-3), Sept. 13, 1965. The President did not take a position on the amendment.

222. HR 9811. Brewster (D Md.) amendment putting a $25,000 annual ceiling on price support loans and payments any producer could receive under the bill. Rejected 33-56: R 11-18; D 22-38 (ND 20-18; SD 2-20), Sept. 14, 1965. The President did not take a position on the amendment. (See RC 223, 224 on next chart)

Rejected 37-45: R 22-5; D 15-40 (ND 3-34; SD 12-6), Oct. 20, 1965. A "nay" was a vote supporting the President's position. (See story p. 182 and RC 159)

HOW CQ MEASURES MEMBERS' PERFORMANCE

The legislative record of the individual Senator or Representative is composed of actions -- or inactions -- many of which are not a matter of public record. As a member of one or more standing committees and their several subcommittees, where the shape of legislation generally is determined, the legislator participates in the making of important decisions, often behind closed doors. As bills move to the floor, he may be busy rounding up supporters -- again out of public view -- for an amendment that will be offered. On the floor he may or may not participate in the recorded debate. The only official record by which the actions of any legislator may be compared with those of his colleagues is the roll-call vote.

The great bulk of proposed legislation that reaches the floor is disposed of by voice vote -- without a record of each legislator's position. For example, Congress in 1965 passed 2,100 bills, yet recorded only 459 roll calls. Some of the legislation accepted or rejected by voice vote is important. Conversely, some of the matters disposed of by roll-call vote are relatively unimportant. Nevertheless, most roll calls involve substantial issues, and they provide, in the final analysis, the only indisputable record of each legislator's actions.

For these reasons, Congressional Quarterly publishes the results of all roll calls in specially designed voting charts. These show summaries of the proposals put to a vote and the positions recorded by the Members. CQ's roll-call charts present the individual Member's complete voting record, in so far as it is available.

The voting record, covering a wide span of legislative issues during any session, is inevitably open to partisan analysis and interpretation by the two major parties and other interested groups. In an attempt to provide students of Congress with a meaningful yet nonpartisan analysis of record voting, Congressional Quarterly conducts eight separate and distinct studies, each under a specific system of ground rules, as follows:

Voting Participation. This study is designed to show the extent to which each Member actually casts "yea" or "nay" votes -- the only kind that can determine the legislative outcome -- on roll calls for which he is eligible. Relatively few Members score 100 percent since absences due to illness, committee sessions and travel are common. Voting Participation is not, however, a record of absenteeism as such. It is a measure of the relative extent to which Members make effective use of their voting privilege.

On The Record. Members who, for one reason or another, do not cast "yea" or "nay" votes on roll calls are generally recorded as being for or against the measure voted upon. These recorded positions are added to the "yea" and "nay" votes in tabulating On The Record, which is a measure of the extent to which each Member makes his position on all roll-call votes a matter of public record.

Presidential Support and Opposition. This study is designed to show the extent to which each Member of Congress supports or opposes the specific legislative requests or stands of the President. Key step is the choice of roll calls for inclusion in the tabulation. Only those votes are included on which it is possible to say that the President, were he a Member of Congress, would have voted "yea" or "nay" on the basis of his personal messages and statements issued before the vote was taken. This method results in the inclusion of some non-controversial votes as well as the exclusion of certain important roll calls on which the President's own position was not publicly clear at the time the vote was taken. Any departure from the method used, however, would lead to a subjective weighting of issues, the results of which would be open to serious challenge.

Federal Role. This study measures the positions of Members with respect to the nature, scope and extent of the role of the Federal Government. Votes are chosen in which Members are presented with a choice between a larger and a smaller federal role. Sometimes the alternative is between maintaining or enlarging an existing program; sometimes between initiating a smaller or a larger program; sometimes between maintaining the status quo or diminishing the federal role. Only one roll call on any single issue is included in the Federal Role study. This type of study is considered less open to misinterpretation than CQ's former Economy Support study.

Party Unity. This study is designed to show the extent to which each Member votes with the majority of his party when that majority is opposed by a majority of the other party. Thus, by definition, roll calls included in the tabulation of Party Unity scores are selected automatically according to the numerical outcome of the vote.

Conservative Coalition (Southern Democratic-Republican coalition vs. Northern Democrats). This study examines all the votes (there were 112 in 1965) in which a majority of voting Northern Democrats and a majority of voting Southern Democrats took opposing positions, and the Southern majority sided with a majority of voting Republicans, thus forming a "conservative coalition." Individual coalition support scores are listed, as well as opposition scores. The opposition scores also may be viewed as scores in support of a "liberal coalition" -- a majority of Northern Democrats voting together with a minority of Republicans and Southern Democrats in opposition to the conservative coalition.

North-South Democratic Split. This study pinpoints the issues on which the Northern and Southern blocs of the Democratic party were in disagreement. Two groups of votes are used: conservative coalition votes; and votes on which the majority of voting Southern Democrats voted in opposition to the position taken by both a majority of voting Northern Democrats and a majority of voting Republicans (Northern Democratic-Republican coalition vs. Southern Democrats). The study includes the scores of individual Democrats on the 160 test votes which occurred in 1965.

Bipartisan Voting (Northern Democratic-Southern Democratic-Republican coalition). This study examines the votes (there were 246 in 1965) on which a majority of voting Northern Democrats, voting Southern Democrats and voting Republicans were in agreement. Among the elements highlighted by this study were the "independent" voters -- those who voted most consistently against the combined majorities of all three major blocs.

CQ Fact Sheet On Conservative Coalition

BACK OF THE 'CONSERVATIVE COALITION' IS BROKEN

The "conservative coalition" of Republicans and Southern Democrats was a shadow of its former self in 1965. From late New Deal days on through 1964, the coalition had been able to defeat much social welfare legislation pushed by the Northern wing of the Democratic party. In 1965, it sought to scuttle President Johnson's "Great Society" programs but found its support woefully lacking. The coalition wound up with its lowest percentage of victories (33 percent) since Congressional Quarterly started to measure the coalition scores in 1957. (For definitions, see box.)

By far the most dramatic drop in coalition strength occurred in the House. In 1961, President Kennedy's first year in office, the coalition had been able to win 74 percent of the roll calls on which it appeared. But in 1965 it was able to win only 25 percent, and then usually on those votes where the President did not take a position. In the Senate, the coalition's percentage of victories was down to 39 percent, also a record low.

Comparisons to Past Years

Coalition Appearance 1961-1965 -- Percentage of roll calls on which the coalition appeared:

1961	28%	1964	15%
1962	14	1965	24
1963	17

Coalition Victories 1961-1965 -- Percentage of conservative coalition roll calls won by the coalition:

	Total	Senate	House
1961	55%	48%	74%
1962	62	71	44
1963	50	44	67
1964	51	47	67
1965	33	39	25

Definitions

● CONSERVATIVE COALITION -- As used in this study, the term "conservative coalition" means a voting alliance of Republicans and Southern Democrats against the Northern Democrats in Congress. This meaning, rather than any philosophic definition of the "conservative" position, provides the basis for CQ's selection of coalition roll calls.

● CONSERVATIVE COALITION ROLL CALL -- Any roll call on which the majority of voting Southern Democrats and the majority of voting Republicans oppose the stand taken by the majority of voting Northern Democrats. (These roll calls are listed in the 1965 Almanac.) Roll calls on which there is an even division within the ranks of voting Northern Democrats, Southern Democrats or Republicans are not included.

● The Southern states are Alabama, Arkansas, Florida, Georgia, Kentucky, Louisiana, Mississippi, North Carolina, Oklahoma, South Carolina, Tennessee, Texas and Virginia. The other 37 states are grouped as the North in the study.

● CONSERVATIVE COALITION SUPPORT SCORE -- Percentage of conservative coalition roll calls on which a Member votes "yea" or "nay" in agreement with the position of the conservative coalition. Failures to vote, even if a Member announces his stand, lower his score.

● CONSERVATIVE COALITION OPPOSITION SCORE -- Percentage of conservative coalition roll calls on which a Member votes "yea" or "nay" in disagreement with the position of the conservative coalition. Support and Opposition scores add to 100 percent only if a Member votes on all coalition roll calls for which he is eligible.

Factors Behind Shift

Elections -- Clearly the crucial element in the failure of the conservative coalition in 1965 was the dramatic election gains made by Democrats in the House, and to a lesser extent in the Senate, in 1964. Crippled by unpopular Presidential candidate Barry Goldwater at the head of their ticket, Republicans in 1964 suffered a net loss of 38 House seats and 2 Senate seats. Ironically, Goldwater, who had set out to win new conservative beachheads in American politics, prepared the way for an almost total rout of the conservatives by their liberal opponents. At the same time, some Southern Democrats began to take more moderate positions, further weakening the conservative coalition's base of strength.

Rules -- Coincidentally, the amendments of House rules also set the stage for more liberal victories. The trimming of the power of conservatives on the House Rules Committee had begun in 1961 with a deliberate addition of enough members to create a slim liberal majority. The expansion was confirmed in 1963, and the new rules adopted at the start of the 89th Congress in 1965, permitting the Speaker to bypass the Rules Committee on bills reported out of legislative committees three weeks or more, completed the preparation for a wave of liberal bills in 1965 (see p. 18).

Among the bills which might have suffered emasculation or total defeat at the hands of the conservative coalition in an earlier year, but which sailed to victory in 1965, were: medical care for the aged under Social Security, aid for elementary education, a sweeping housing bill and establishment of a Department of Housing and Urban Development, a $1.1 billion aid program for Appalachia, and vastly increased funds for the President's anti-poverty program.

Southern Democratic Defections -- In the Senate, the coalition suffered from large defections in Southern Democratic ranks. Men like Yarborough (Texas), Bass (Tenn.), Monroney (Okla.), Harris (Okla.) and Long (La.), the new Democratic Whip, rarely supported the coalition. The over-all Senate Southern Democratic coalition support score dropped 8 points in 1965 -- from 68 percent to 60 percent. In the House, Southern support for the coalition also declined, though by a lesser percentage point difference (64 percent in 1964 to 61 percent in 1965). Topping the list of Southern House Democratic opponents of the coalition were two urban Congressmen: Reps. Gonzalez (San Antonio, Texas) and Grider (Memphis, Tenn.), with opposition scores of 96 and 92 percent, respectively.

President and Coalition

The President did not always take a position on coalition votes, but his position was known on 62 of the 112 votes in 1965. When the President and the coalition were pitted against each other, Mr. Johnson came out on top 84 percent of the time -- winning 46 and losing 9. In the Senate, this occurred on 27 roll calls and the President won 21. In the House the President won 25 of the 28 votes where he and the coalition were opposed.

On rare occasions, the President and the conservative coalition lined up on the same side of an issue. This occurred on seven Senate roll calls, ranging from military pay increases to a poll tax ban. On each occasion, the combination of the President and the coalition carried the day.

'Swing' Votes

Although this vote study concentrates on the three main voting blocs in Congress -- Northern Democrat, Southern Democrat and Republican -- the votes provide an indication as well of the voting habits of smaller factions within these blocs. Where the votes were close, the scales may have been tipped by one or several of these factions -- "liberals" in the Southern Democratic camp, Westerners in the Northern Democratic camp, East Coast "liberals" in the Republican camp.

The over-all impact of these groups on coalition voting has not been analyzed separately in this study. However, "swing" Members can be ascertained in a general way through an examination of the individual coalition support and opposition scores. Those with intermediate scores were the "swing" voters upon whom victory or defeat for the coalition often hinged.

To determine more precisely where the winning margin came from on each vote, it is necessary to refer to Congressional Quarterly roll-call vote charts.

Individual Congressmen's scores begin on p. 1092.

Coalition Strength

As of adjournment Oct. 23, the potential strength of the conservative coalition was 54 (R 32, SD 22) of the 100 votes in the Senate and 240 (R 140, SD 100) of the 432 votes in the House (there were 2 vacancies and the House Speaker is not counted because he rarely votes). This constituted a winning majority in each chamber, but groupings of liberal Southern Democrats and liberal Northern Republicans generally shift the balance of power away from the coalition's side. The figures below compare coalition appearances in 1965 to the entire 88th Congress (1963-64).

Coalition Victories

Senate. In the area of foreign policy, coalition votes reduced authorizations for the arms control and disarmament agency, development loans, foreign assistance, and technical assistance. The coalition also helped the President to prevent a cut in military aid and pass the automotive products agreement between the U.S. and Canada.

Domestic policy victories for the coalition in the Senate included the defeat of a Kennedy (D Mass.) amendment to the voting rights bill prohibiting poll taxes (Johnson opposed the Kennedy amendment); postponing the deadline for cigarette labeling; cutting appropriations for D.C. poverty assistance; supporting the President's guidelines for military pay increases; rejecting cuts in public works and the Atomic Energy Commission; rejecting an amendment to the D.C. Criminal Code bill deleting the 3-hour interrogation limit by D.C. police; and refusing to invoke cloture on a filibuster blocking a bill to repeal Section 14(b) of the Taft-Hartley Act.

House. There was no coalition victory in the House in the foreign policy area.

Domestically, the coalition victories included the defeat of a bill to provide pay raises to the Supreme Court; a series of victories on the Voting Rights Act of 1965; giving state Governors power to veto certain anti-poverty programs; killing the Administration-backed plan for D.C. home rule; killing automatic pay increases for Members of Congress and federal executives and judges; and deleting appropriations for rent supplement payments and the $6 million contract authority for new dwellings under the program.

Coalition Defeats

Senate. In the Senate, coalition defeats included failures to scuttle foreign aid appropriations, to halt passage of the Housing and Urban Development Act (providing rent supplements) and to halt passage of a bill setting up a Department of Housing and Urban Development. A proposed constitutional amendment on the apportionment of state legislatures obtained a majority but not the two-thirds vote necessary for approval.

House. In the House the coalition failed to deter the final passage of foreign aid legislation or appropriations. Other coalition defeats included the failure to prevent the adoption of new rules to bypass the House Rules Committee and prevent delay of final action on a bill; failure to prevent passage of the Elementary and Secondary Education Act; failure to kill the "medicare" bill; failure to prevent the establishment of the Department of Housing and Urban Development; failure to halt expanded funds for the President's anti-poverty program; failure in holding up revision of Section 14(b) of the Taft-Hartley Act; failure to prevent the D.C. home rule bill from coming to the floor; and failure to prevent five bills from coming up under the 21-day rule. The House failed to delete rent supplement payments from the Housing and Urban Development Act, but later succeeded in deleting appropriations for them from a supplemental appropriations bill. Senate Conservative Coalition -- 1965 & 88th Congress

The chart below shows how often individual Senators voted "with" and "against" the conservative coalition. The figures are based on Senate roll calls on which the majority of voting Republicans and the majority of voting Southern Democrats, forming a "conservative coalition," opposed the stand taken by the majority of voting Northern Democrats.

1. CONSERVATIVE COALITION SUPPORT, 1965. Percentage of 61 conservative coalition roll calls in 1965 on which Senator voted "yea" or "nay" in agreement with the position of the conservative coalition. Failures to vote lower both Support and Opposition scores.

2. CONSERVATIVE COALITION OPPOSITION, 1965. Percentage of 61 conservative coalition roll calls in 1965 on which Senator voted "yea" or "nay" in disagreement with the position of the conservative coalition. Failures to vote lower both Support and Opposition scores.

3. CONSERVATIVE COALITION SUPPORT, 88th Congress. Percentage of 94 conservative coalition roll calls in 1963 and 1964 on which Senator voted "yea" or "nay" in agreement with the position of the conservative coalition. Failures to vote lower both Support and Opposition scores.

4. CONSERVATIVE COALITION OPPOSITION, 88th Congress. Percentage of 94 conservative coalition roll calls in 1963 and 1964 on which Senator voted "yea" or "nay" in disagreement with the position of the conservative coalition. Failures to vote lower both Support and Opposition scores.

Democrats in this type; Republicans in italics

CQ Fact Sheet On North-South Split

DEMOCRATS' REGIONAL DIVISIONS REMAIN GREAT IN 1965

Despite the personal leadership of President Johnson, himself a Southerner and a Democrat, the Northern and Southern wings of the Democratic party continued in 1965 to split over a wide range of issues. Of a total of 459 roll-call votes in both houses of the Congress, a split between Northern and Southern Democrats appeared on 160. (These 160 roll calls refer to votes on which a majority of voting Southern Democrats took one position, opposed to that of a majority of voting Northern Democrats. In this study, the South includes the 11 states of the Old Confederacy plus Oklahoma and Kentucky; the North includes the other 37 states. See p. 1083)

Issues That Divide

Many of the North-South split votes occurred on legislation which had provided Democratic intraparty splits in previous years, notably civil rights, foreign aid and welfare measures. Splits came on a number of measures given high priority by the Johnson Administration, including medicare, the Elementary-Secondary Education Act, the immigration bill, home rule for the District of Columbia and establishment of a Department of Housing and Urban Development. North-South disagreements also accompanied Presidential defeats on issues such as repeal of section 14(b) ("right to work") of the Taft-Hartley Act, home rule, rent supplements and duty-free goods.

Civil Rights led the divisions, producing 10 splits in the House and 26 in the Senate. Various civil rights questions have resulted in splits in every Congress since 1957, when Congressional Quarterly began the study of the North-South split. 1965 divisions occurred in both chambers on the Voting Rights Act and in the House on the seating of the Mississippi Congressional delegation and proposed amendments to the 1964 Civil Rights Act. (Senate Roll Calls (RCs) 32, 51-54, 56, 57, 59, 60, 61, 64-78, 178. House RCs 2, 82-87, 107, 145, 146)

Foreign Policy produced 26 splits during the first session of the 89th Congress. Four of these votes were on immigration policy, which also split the two factions of the party in 1957. The majority of the other foreign policy disagreements came on foreign aid votes, which have consistently provided North-South divisions. (Senate RCs 19, 28, 90-92, 95, 97, 99, 201, 232, 233, 237, 238, 240, 242, 243, 245. House RCs 55, 56, 120, 124, 125, 136, 177, 182, 183)

Economic Opportunity Act amendments resulted in 15 splits, with Southern Democrats frequently opposing attempts to limit a state Governor's power over poverty projects. (Senate RCs 183-187, 189, 191-195, 198. House RCs 94, 95, 153)

Education provided six disagreements. Five of these votes occurred over the Elementary-Secondary Education Act -- two in the House and three in the Senate. Higher Education also caused a break in Democratic party unity in the Senate. (Senate RCs 38, 40, 41, 214. House RCs 25, 26)

Rent Supplements, one of Mr. Johnson's major defeats, brought a division, with Southern Democrats opposing the proposal. (Senate RCs 159, 160, 162, 253, 254. House RCs 80, 81, 98, 194)

Home Rule for the District of Columbia produced seven splits in the House and one in the Senate, as Southerners continued their firm opposition. (House RCs 170-176. Senate RC 172)

Medicare divided Democrats three times in the Senate (RCs 140, 143, 149) and once in the House (RC 34).

Repeal of Section 14(b) of the Taft-Hartley Act caused three Democratic divisions, with Southerners opposing repeal. Democrats split once in the Senate (RC 248) and twice in the House (RCs 100, 101) on repeal, which was supported by the President.

The D.C. Crime bill, opposed by many Northerners, brought three divisions, two in the House (RC 21, 22) and one in the Senate (RC 208).

Establishment of a Department of Housing and Urban Development, opposed by Southerners, provided a split in each house (Senate RC 179, House RC 71).

Reapportionment of state legislatures, with Northerners opposing moves to dilute the Supreme Court's "one man, one vote" mandate, split Senate Democrats twice (RCs 176, 177), while Congressional districting was responsible for a division in the House (RC 18).

Agriculture policy resulted in seven splits in the Senate. These were over the tobacco quota referendum (RC 34), the Sugar Act amendment to delete import quotas (RC 251), the importation of foreign farm labor (RCs 219, 220) and farm price supports (RCs 222, 223, 224).

Appropriations questions divided Senate Democrats five times -- once over Defense Department funds (RC 202), once over the construction funds for the Westlands Irrigation District in California (RC 200) and three times over District of Columbia funds (123, 171, 172).

Duty-free allowances for Americans returning from abroad, which Southern Democrats preferred to reduce, brought three Senate splits (RCs 134, 135, 138).

Federal regulation of billboards, a dividing factor in 1958, was responsible for two Senate splits in 1965. Southerners opposed stricter regulations. (RCs 228, 229)

Procedural motions caused five breaks among House Democrats on Sept. 13 (RCs 140, 141, 144, 147, 148).

Establishment of a National Foundation on the Arts and Humanities resulted in two House divisions, with Northerners in favor, Southerners opposed (RCs 150, 154).

The Supreme Court pay-increase issue divided House Democrats twice, again with the North for, the South against. (RCs 19, 20)

Other Senate splits occurred over permitting the Joint Committee on the Reorganization of the Congress to recommend rules changes (RC 26), an excise tax reduction for trucks used in the operation of a farm or ranch (112), an amendment to provide a one-year (rather than a three-year) prohibition against the imposition of a requirement that cigarette advertising contain a health warning (118), patent rights to inventions and research developed with federal funds (131), the voting age in the District of Columbia (170), the military pay increase (180), the "exclusive" rights to a college athlete while he is still in school (210), an amendment to the Railroad Retirement Act challenging the constitutionality of the Senate attaching a tax provision to the bill (212), wage requirements on FHA-financed projects (158) and elimination of requirement that self-employed physicians be included under Social Security (146).

House Democrats also divided over adoption of House rules (RC 3), the policy for uninsured D.C. drivers (113), helicopter subsidies (43), the Congressional intern program (72), the proposal to retain 40 percent silver in dimes and quarters (91), increases in the public works program in amount and area and reduction in years (115), amendment of the Bank Holding Company Act with respect to the duPont Estate in Jacksonville (149), repeal of exemptions for certain charitable, religious and educational organizations and trusts (165), deletion of provision for automatic pay increases for Members of Congress, federal executives and judges in 1967 (178) and the authorization for the Southern Nevada Project (187).

Stands of Individual Democrats

The charts below and on the following page show how often individual Democrats voted "with" the Southern and Northern positions on party-splitting issues. The first two columns are based on the 99 Senate roll calls and the 61 House roll calls on which the majority of voting Southern Democrats opposed the stand taken by the majority of voting Northern Democrats in 1965. The last two columns show the votes of Democrats on 124 Senate roll calls and 35 House roll calls in the 88th Congress.

- COLUMN 1 gives the number of roll calls on which the Member voted "yea" or "nay" in agreement with the majority of voting Southern Democrats in 1965.
- COLUMN 2 gives the number of roll calls on which the Member voted "yea" or "nay" in agreement with the majority of voting Northern Democrats in 1965.
- COLUMN 3 gives the number of roll calls on which the Member voted "yea" or "nay" in agreement with the majority of voting Southern Democrats in the 88th Congress.
- COLUMN 4 gives the number of roll calls on which the Member voted "yea" or "nay" in agreement with the majority of voting Northern Democrats in the 88th Congress.

Failure to vote kept the figure for most Senators and Representatives below the maximum possible.

Individual Stands

An examination of individual Democrats' over-all vote scores, compared to other Democrats from their region, provides an interesting intellectual cross-section of the party. Among House Democrats, for instance, the "most Southern" group included a high proportion of Virginians, including Rules Committee Chairman Howard W. Smith. The "least Southern" Representatives among the Southerners included a mixture of urban Representatives with House Democratic leadership figures like Majority Leader Carl Albert (Okla.) and Whip Hale Boggs (La.).

In the Senate, the "most Southern" group included three committee chairmen -- James O. Eastland (Miss.) of the Judiciary Committee, B. Everett Jordan (N.C.) of the Rules Committee and Lister Hill (Ala.) of Labor and Public Welfare. And among Northern Democrats, those who supported the Southern position most frequently included two more committee chairmen -- Carl T. Hayden (Ariz.) of Appropriations and Alan Bible (Nev.) of the D.C. Committee. The Southern Democratic Senators supporting their region's position least frequently included two freshmen -- Ross Bass (Tenn.) and Fred R. Harris (Okla.) -- and one leadership man, the Senate Democratic Whip, Russell B. Long (La.).

Although individuals have not tended to fluctuate from one category to another over the years, Sen. Hill (Ala.) provided an exception. Hill, who narrowly won re-election against an ultra-conservative Republican in 1962, was one of the "least Southern" Southerners in 1962, but one of the "most Southern" Southerners in 1965.

The score charts on the previous pages show how often each Democratic Senator and Representative, from the North as well as the South, voted with and against the Southern position on the party-splitting issues. (Only "yeas" and "nays" were counted; pairs and announced stands were not.) Leading scorers:

SENATE

Most "Southern" Southerners -- The Southern Democratic Senators who voted most frequently with the majority of Southerners on the 99 party-splitting issues in 1965 were: James O. Eastland (Miss.) and Sam J. Ervin (N.C.) 93; John C. Stennis (Miss.) 90; B. Everett Jordan (N.C.) 88; Lister Hill (Ala.) 85; Spessard L. Holland (Fla.) and Herman E. Talmadge (Ga.) 84.

Least "Southern" Southerners -- The Southern Democratic Senators who voted most frequently against the majority of Southerners on the 99 party-splitting issues in 1965 were: Ralph W. Yarborough (Texas) 73; A.S. Mike Monroney (Okla.) and Ross Bass (Tenn.) 72; Fred R. Harris (Okla.) 68; Albert Gore (Tenn.) 56; Russell B. Long (La.) 41.

Most "Southern" Northerners -- The Northern Democratic Senators who voted most frequently with the majority of Southerners were: Robert C. Byrd (W.Va.) 59; Alan Bible (Nev.) and Frank J. Lausche (Ohio) 42; Howard W. Cannon (Nev.) 30; Carl T. Hayden (Ariz.) 26; Stuart Symington (Mo.) 25.

HOUSE

Most "Southern" Southerners -- The Southern Democratic Representatives who voted most frequently with the majority of Southerners on the 61 party-splitting issues of 1965 were: James A. Haley (Fla.), Basil L. Whitener (N.C.), David E. Satterfield III (Va.) and Howard W. Smith (Va.) 61; L.H. Fountain (N.C.), John Dowdy (Texas), Watkins M. Abbitt (Va.), John O. Marsh Jr. (Va.) and William M. Tuck (Va.) 60.

Least "Southern" Southerners -- The Southern Democratic Representatives who voted most frequently against the majority of Southerners on the 61 party-splitting issues in 1965 were: Henry B. Gonzalez (Texas) 58; George W. Grider (Tenn.) 55; Carl D. Perkins (Ky.) 54; Carl Albert (Okla.) 53; Dante B. Fascell (Fla.), Claude D. Pepper (Fla.) and Ed Edmondson (Okla.) 52; Hale Boggs (La.) and William R. Anderson (Tenn.) 51.

Most "Southern" Northerners -- The Northern Democratic Representatives who voted most frequently with the majority of Southerners were: W.R. Hull (Mo.) 48; Walter S. Baring (Nev.) 45; Paul C. Jones (Mo.) 37; Richard H. Ichord (Mo.) 35; Thomas G. Morris (N.M.) 30; E.S. Johnny Walker (N.M.) 28; Robert T. Secrest (Ohio) 27.

Number of Splits

The 160 splits recorded in 1965 represented divisions in the Democratic party on 35 percent of all roll-call votes. The percentage for 1965 was 11 points higher than the 1964 figure, but the 1964 figure was weighted so that only 11 of the 121 Senate roll-call votes on civil rights were included. The result was that the 1964 Senate score was 30 percent rather than the 54 percent which would have been recorded had all civil rights votes been used.

There are several explanations for the increase, with the 1964 weighted figure being one. Johnson, with an overwhelming 1964 election victory behind him, sent up more controversial measures than in the previous year. Also, with the new Democratic majority, particularly the Democratic gains in the North and West, it was not necessary to press for the same amount of Southern support as in previous years. The tendency of the newer Southern Democrats to vote with the Southern majority less may also cause closer votes and therefore less cohesion within the Southern majority than has existed in the past.

Following are the 1965 results:

1965	Total Roll Calls	North-South Democratic Splits	Percentage of Splits
Both Chambers	459	160	35%
Senate	258	99	38
House	201	61	30

The table below shows how the number and percentage of splits in both chambers in 1965 compare with the previous eight years:

Year	Total Roll Calls	North-South Democratic Splits	Percentage of Splits
1965	459	160	35%
1964	308*	75	24
1963	348	84	24
1962	348	74	21
1961	320	107	33
1960	300	119	40
1959	302	83	27
1958	293	84	29
1957	207	64	31

 110 civil rights votes were omitted from the session's total of 418 for this study.*

In 1965 Northern Democratic Senators supported the Southern position on 14 percent of the roll-call votes, while the Northern Democratic Representatives voted with the Southern position 9 percent of the time. Southern Democratic Senators recorded 62 percent support for the Southern position on the issues and Southern Democratic Representatives registered 61 percent support.

CQ Fact Sheet On Presidential Support-Opposition

CONGRESS BACKS JOHNSON ON 93% OF ROLL-CALL VOTES

President Johnson won 93 percent of the 274 Congressional roll calls that presented clear-cut tests of support for his views in 1965.

Mr. Johnson's success on roll calls was the highest attained by any President since Congressional Quarterly began its Presidential support studies in 1953. The record mark was 5 points greater than Mr. Johnson's 1964 score and compared with 87.1 percent for President Kennedy in 1963 and 89 percent for President Eisenhower in 1953. (1964 Almanac p. 728)

In both parties, President Johnson's requests received the greatest combined support from Congressional Members from the East and the greatest opposition from those from the South.

Average Support Scores

The average Democratic Member's support score in the Senate was 64 percent -- 3 points higher than in 1964 -- while the average mark for House Democrats remained unchanged at 74 percent. Republican support increased by 3 points in each chamber -- from 45 to 48 percent in the Senate and from 38 to 41 percent in the House.

Democratic opposition scores remained nearly the same as in 1964 in both chambers, 21 and 15 percent for Senate and House, respectively. GOP opposition, however, declined from 42 percent to 39 percent in the Senate and from 52 percent to 48 percent in the House.

Texas Delegation. While House Democrats were supporting the President 74 percent of the time, the all-Democratic delegation from Mr. Johnson's home state of Texas provided only 62 percent support. The 23 Texas Democrats opposed the President on 26 percent of the test votes, in contrast to the average House Democratic opposition of only 15 percent.

House Freshmen. The 71 House Democratic freshmen, elected in their party's 1964 landslide, gave the President an 82-percent score, 8 percent greater than the mark for all House Democrats. Their support enabled passage of eight major Administration proposals: Appalachian regional development, medicare, foreign aid, creation of a Department of Housing and Urban Development, rent supplements, right-to-work repeal, expansion of the poverty program and omnibus farm legislation.

Foreign, Domestic Policy Support

Foreign Policy Support. As in 1964, the President's largest over-all support gain appeared on Foreign Policy roll calls. Senate Republican support for Mr. Johnson's foreign policy requests rose by 13 points to 58 percent, while GOP opposition fell by that same amount to 25 percent. In the House, Republican support rose by 5 points to 41 percent, while opposition declined by 6 points to 49 percent. This was largely due to broad GOP support for the war in Viet Nam and to the fact that the President again submitted a "bare bones" foreign aid bill which tempted Congress to make only token cuts.

Democratic support for the President's foreign policy requests rose by 2 points in both chambers -- from 75 to 77 percent in the House and from 58 to 60 percent in the Senate.

Domestic Support. On Domestic Policy roll calls, President Johnson gained slightly increased support from Senate Democrats and House Republicans. For the fifth consecutive year, House Democratic support on domestic policy requests remained constant at 73 percent. Senate Republican support matched its 1964 level of 45 percent.

Ground Rules

CQ's 1965 Presidential support study was based on 274 test votes on which there was a clear indication, as revealed in President Johnson's own messages and public statements, that he would have supported or opposed the proposal put to a vote. (For detailed ground rules, see box) The votes selected numbered more than one-half of all 1965 roll calls -- 112 of 201 in the House and 162 of 258 in the Senate.

Johnson Victories

Congress backed President Johnson on 255 of the 274 test roll calls, or 93 percent of the time.

Senate. The Senate backed the President's stand on 150 of 162 test roll calls in that chamber -- 93 percent of the time.

House. The House backed the President's stand on 105, or 94 percent of the 112 test votes in that chamber.

Individual Lows, Highs

Highest individual scorers in Johnson opposition -- those who voted "against" the President most often in 1965 -- and highest supporters are listed on p. 1110.

Ground Rules for CQ Presidential Support-Opposition

● PRESIDENTIAL ISSUES -- CQ analyzes all messages, press conference remarks and other public statements of the President to determine what he personally, as distinct from other Administration spokesmen, does or does not want in the way of legislative action.

● BORDERLINE CASES -- By the time an issue reaches a vote, it may differ from the original form on which the President expressed himself. In such cases, CQ analyzes the measure to determine whether, on balance, the features favored by the President outweigh those he opposes or vice versa. Only then is the vote classified.

● IMPORTANT VOTES EXCLUDED -- Occasionally, important measures are so extensively amended on the floor that it is impossible to characterize final passage as a victory or defeat for the President.

● MOTIONS -- Roll calls on motions to recommit, to reconsider or to table often are key tests that govern the legislative outcome. Such votes are necessarily included in the Johnson support tabulations.

● RULES -- In the House, debate on most significant bills is governed by rules that restrict time and may bar floor amendments. These rules must be adopted by the House before the bills in question may be considered. Members may vote for the rule, in order to permit debate, although they intend to vote against the bill. Generally, however, a vote against a rule is a vote against the bill, and vice versa, since rejection of the rule prevents consideration of the bill. CQ assumes that if the President favored a bill, he favored the rule, unless it was a closed rule that would prevent amendments he wanted.

● APPROPRIATIONS -- Generally, roll calls on passage of appropriation bills are not included in this tabulation, since it is rarely possible to determine the President's position on the over-all revisions Congress almost invariably makes in the sums allowed. An exception to this rule is the foreign aid appropriation, since the program is not permanent. Votes to cut or increase specific funds requested in the President's budget also are included.

● FAILURES TO VOTE -- In tabulating the Support and Opposition scores of Members on the selected Johnson-issue roll calls, CQ counts only "yea" and "nay" votes on the ground that only these affect the outcome. Most failures to vote reflect absences because of illness or official business.

● WEIGHTING -- All Johnson-issue roll calls have equal statistical weight in this analysis. Any system of differential weighting would make the analysis subjective and less useful.

● CHANGED POSITION -- Presidential Support is determined by the position of the President at the time of a vote even though that position may be different from an earlier position, or may have been reversed after the vote was taken.

Johnson Support - Opposition Scores

Senate All Issues -- 1965 & 88th Congress

1. OVER-ALL SUPPORT Score, 1965. Percentage of 162 Johnson-issue roll calls in 1965 -- both foreign and domestic -- on which Senator voted "yea" or "nay" in agreement with the President's position. Failures to vote lower both Support and Opposition scores.

2. OVER-ALL OPPOSITION Score, 1965. Percentage of 162 Johnson-issue roll calls in 1965 -- both foreign and domestic -- on which Senator voted "yea" or "nay" in disagreement with the President's position. Failures to vote lower both Support and Opposition scores.

3. OVER-ALL SUPPORT Score, 88th Congress. Percentage of 212 Kennedy-Johnson-issue roll calls in 1963 and 1964 -- both foreign and domestic -- on which Senator voted "yea" or "nay" in agreement with the President's position. Failures to vote lower both Support and Opposition scores.

4. OVER-ALL OPPOSITION Score, 88th Congress. Percentage of 212 Kennedy-Johnson-issue roll calls in 1963 and 1964 -- both foreign and domestic -- on which Senator voted "yea" or "nay" in disagreement with the President's position. Failures to vote lower both Support and Opposition scores.

SUPPORT FOR LARGER FEDERAL ROLE INCREASES

A basic difference in philosophy in American politics is over the role of the Federal Government. While the nature and limits of that role are subject to constitutional restraint, specific issues often generate debate over whether the Government is "going too far," "growing too central" or "getting too big."

This philosophic difference over how large a role the Government should assume is a profound one in Congress. It may account for much of the difference in posture between Democrats and Republicans, between "Liberals" and "Conservatives," between Northerners and Southerners -- not to mention other regional representatives -- and between urban and rural Members.

In its annual Federal Role study, Congressional Quarterly analyzes selected roll-call votes to determine how Senators and Representatives stood when the issue of the role of the Government clearly presented itself. In over-all terms, support for a larger Federal Role increased in 1965 -- the first session of the 89th Congress -- compared with the two-session figures for the 88th Congress. At no time in 1965 did a majority of both parties oppose a larger Federal Role.

The 1965 study measures in many respects the results of the 1964 Presidential campaign, which pitted then Sen. Barry M. Goldwater (R), an outspoken foe of a larger Federal Role, against the incumbent, President Johnson, aligned with supporters of a larger Federal Role. Mr. Johnson's overwhelming victory and the large Democratic majorities in both Senate and House clearly were factors in the strong support shown for a larger Federal Role.

Test Votes

Congress cast 459 roll-call votes in 1965 -- 258 in the Senate and 201 in the House. The numerous "Great Society" programs presented by Mr. Johnson, programs which moved the Federal Government into such new fields as medical care for the aged, secondary school aid and highway beautification, resulted in a number of votes in which the role of Government was at issue.

For its 1965 study, CQ selected 12 Senate and 13 House roll calls that offered a choice between a larger or smaller Federal Role, a choice represented by maintaining or enlarging an existing program, by initiating a program or not, by initiating a larger or smaller program or by establishing federal or state control over a program.

In the Senate, the two parties split evenly in supporting a larger Federal Role. On six of the 12 votes, both parties supported a larger Federal Role. These six were water pollution, secondary school aid, voting rights, "Cold War GI bill," college aid and highway beautification.

In the House, on the other hand, Democrats and Republicans found a majority of their parties in agreement on Federal Role test votes only three times -- on voting rights, college aid and air pollution (which only four Members opposed).

Northern and Southern Democrats occasionally voted against each other in what is called the "conservative coalition," with Southern Democrats teaming up with Republicans. In 1965 this coalition appeared in Senate Federal Role test votes three times -- on rent supplements, the new Housing and Urban Development Department (HUD) and state veto powers over certain antipoverty programs. In the House, it appeared six times -- on secondary school aid, the HUD bill, rent supplements, state veto power over antipoverty programs, "right-to-work" repeal and federal support for the arts and humanities.

In one instance in each chamber, Northern Democrats teamed with Republicans in what is called the "liberal coalition," leaving Southern Democrats by themselves. In both cases, this coalition formed behind the Voting Rights Act of 1965, which was aimed at securing the rights of Negroes to vote.

Issues that split the parties in both Senate and House in the Federal Role study were Appalachia, medical care for the aged, rent supplements, HUD and state veto power over antipoverty. In addition in the Senate, the parties split over regional development, and in the House they also split over school aid, right-to-work repeal, arts and humanities, highway beautification and the National Teacher Corps.

No effort is made in the Federal Role study to make a qualitative assessment of the votes; they are selected for the issue they present, not for their importance. A precise description of an individual Member's position would require analysis of his stand on each of the votes selected.

Support Scores

In the CQ Federal Role study, Members are scored according to their voting position on the selected test votes after CQ determines whether a "yea" or "nay" represents a vote for a larger Federal Role or for a smaller Federal Role. (The meaning of a "yea" or "nay" as supporting or opposing a larger Federal Role follows the description of each test vote roll call below.) To achieve maximum coverage, announced stands, pairs and CQ poll answers are added to the "yeas" and "nays" actually recorded during the roll calls. Members' scores appear on charts on following pages.

To present the over-all picture for each chamber and party, voting scores are translated into percentages. The average percentage scores for 1965 and for the 88th Congress follow:

	1965		88th Congress
	Dem.	GOP	Dem.	GOP
LARGER FEDERAL ROLE
Both Chambers	80%	36%	75%	40%
Senate	82	46	79	47
House	79	33	74	40
SMALLER FEDERAL ROLE
Both Chambers	18%	61%	20%	56%
Senate	15	52	18	50
House	18	63	21	57

Senate Scores

A solid block of 36 Senators -- all Democrats -- voted to support a larger Federal Role on all 12 of the test votes in the Senate. This solidarity was reduced substantially thereafter, however, as only 13 other Senators (10 Democrats and three Republicans) voted to support a larger Federal Role in 11 of the 12 test votes. The three Republicans were Case (N.J.), Javits (N.Y.) and Smith (Maine). There were 68 Democrats and 32 Republicans in the Senate.

At the other end of the scale in the Senate, only one Senator -- Robertson (D Va.) -- voted to oppose a larger Federal Role on all 12 of the test votes. Thurmond (R S.C.) voted to oppose a larger Federal Role on 11 of the 12 test votes.

In the 1964 study, 24 Senators -- including one Republican -- supported a larger Federal Role on all test votes, 12 below the 1965 total. Also in 1964, three Senators gave no support to a larger Federal Role.

The 1965 party balances in the Senate in support of a larger Federal Role at both ends of the scale are as follows:

	Democrats	Republicans
All 12 votes	36	0
11 votes	10	3
10 votes	3	2
2 votes	2	5
1 vote	0	1
No support	1	0

House Scores

A five-fold increase in solid support for a larger Federal Role occurred in the House in 1965 as compared with 1964. In 1965, a total of 127 Members voted to support a larger Federal Role on all 13 test votes -- these Members included two New York Republicans, Halpern and Reid. In 1964, only 23 Members -- all Democrats -- voted on all test roll calls to support a larger Federal Role. There were 293 Democrats and 140 Republican Members at the session's end.

As in the Senate, support dropped sharply after the large number of Members scoring 100 percent. A total of 52 Members voted to support a larger Federal Role on 12 of the 13 test votes -- these also included two Republicans, Fino (N.Y.) and Tupper (Maine). Support for a larger Federal Role on 11 of the 13 votes came from 31 Members, again including two Republicans -- Horton (N.Y.) and McDade (Pa.).

No Representative opposed a larger Federal Role on all 13 test votes, but eight Members voted to support a larger Federal Role only once: these were five Republicans -- Buchanan (Ala.), Findley (Ill.), Jonas (N.C.), Watson (S.C.) and Poff (Va.) -- and three Democrats -- O'Neal (Ga.), Passman (La.) and Lennon (N.C.). Watson was eligible for only 10 test votes: he supported a larger Federal Role once, opposing it nine times.

The 1965 party balances in the House on the larger Federal Role issue at both ends of the scale are as follows:

	Democrats	Republicans
FOR FEDERAL ROLE
All 13 votes	125	2
12 votes	50	2
11 votes	29	2
AGAINST FEDERAL ROLE
All 13 votes	0	0
12 votes	3	4*
11 votes	12	17
10 votes	16	31

Not including Watson (R S.C.), who was eligible for 10 test votes: he voted for a larger Federal role once and against it nine times.*

Regional Breakdowns

Strong support for a larger Federal Role was shown by Democratic Senators from all regions except the South and by Republican Senators from the East and, to a lesser extent, the West. Support in the House was strongest among Democrats from all regions except the South.

Regional breakdowns for both parties in the Senate and House on positions for and against a larger Federal Role follow:

	FOR LARGER ROLE		AGAINST LARGER ROLE
	House	Senate	House	Senate
All Dems.	79%	82%	18%	15%
All GOP	33	46	63	52
All Eastern	82	87	15	12
All Southern	45	50	51	44
All Midwestern	61	71	36	27
All Western	72	76	26	22

Following are the breakdowns by party and by region in both Senate and House, showing percentages for and against a larger Federal Role:

	SENATE		HOUSE
	Dem.	GOP	Dem.	GOP
FOR LARGER ROLE
Eastern	98%	73%	97%	54%
Southern	54	27	50	16
Midwestern	94	31	92	27
Western	93	41	93	27
AGAINST LARGER ROLE
Eastern	2%	26%	2%	41%
Southern	39	71	46	80
Midwestern	4	66	6	71
Western	3	58	6	69

States and Cities

In the 1965 Federal Role study, CQ also broke down Representatives by the delegations of both parties representing the "Five Big Cities" (Los Angeles, Chicago, Detroit, New York City and Philadelphia) and juxtaposed those findings against all other Representatives -- the "non-Five Big Cities."

That breakdown showed that only Los Angeles and Chicago had significant opposition to a larger Federal Role; indeed, it was nonexistent among the Detroit and Philadelphia delegations and amounted to only one percentage point in opposition among the New York delegation.

A further breakdown was made among the delegations of both parties from selected states -- Texas, Iowa (which sent six Democrats out of seven Members to Congress), California and Georgia. This breakdown disclosed strong support for a larger Federal Role among the new Iowa delegation, and also that the California delegation as a whole showed slightly more support (69 percent) than did the Los Angeles delegation (68 percent) for a larger Federal Role.

The breakdowns for Representatives from both parties in delegations from the Five Big Cities, non-Five Big Cities and selected states follow:

	FOR LARGER ROLE	AGAINST LARGER ROLE
Los Angeles	68%	29%
Chicago	76	21
Detroit	97	0
New York City	96	1
Philadelphia	98	0
All Five Big Cities	85	12
All Non-Five Big Cities	61	36
Texas	53	41
Iowa	79	19
California	69	28
Georgia	47	49

Freshmen

The scores of House freshmen from both parties disclosed that the Democratic freshmen supported a larger Federal Role more strongly (89 percent) than did House Democrats as a whole (79 percent), while Republican freshmen supported a larger role less frequently (23 percent) than did House Republicans as a whole (33 percent).

These performances may be attributable to the strong ideological polarization of the parties during the 1964 Presidential campaign, a campaign which tended to send more "liberal" Democrats and more "conservative" Republicans to the House in the same freshman class.

The breakdown for House freshmen in their stands for and against a larger Federal Role follows:

	FOR LARGER ROLE	AGAINST LARGER ROLE
All Freshmen	74%	23%
Dem. Freshmen	89	10
GOP Freshmen	23	72

Test Votes in CQ Federal Role Study in 1965 Session

Following are descriptions of the 12 Senate and 13 House roll calls in 1965 selected by CQ for its Federal Role study. Each vote is further identified by its CQ Roll Call (RC) number and voting chart page. The position of President Johnson is given when available.

SENATE ROLL CALLS

1. Water Pollution. In the Federal Water Pollution Control Act amendments, legislation requested by the President, a key issue was the power of the Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare to set water quality standards for states having none, instead of simply having authority to make recommendations on standards. The Senate Jan. 28 voted on an amendment to delete this broad power. The amendment was rejected, 15-62: R 12-13; D 3-49 (ND 0-36; SD 3-13). Johnson no position. A "yea" was a vote opposing a larger federal role. (RC 1, p. 1024)

2. Appalachia. The first major "Great Society" measure passed in 1965 was the Appalachian Regional Development Act of 1965, a measure authorizing expenditure of more than $1 billion to regenerate the economy of an 11-state region. The Senate Feb. 1 passed the bill, 62-22: R 11-15; D 51-7 (ND 39-1; SD 12-6). Johnson in favor. A "yea" was a vote supporting a larger federal role. (RC 7, p. 1025)

3. School Aid. Previous efforts to extend federal aid to secondary schools failed because of objections to aiding church-supported schools, but the Elementary and Secondary Education Act of 1965 sought to avoid that issue by directing aid toward pupils rather than schools. The Senate April 9 passed the measure, 73-18: R 18-14; D 55-4 (ND 40-0; SD 15-4). Johnson in favor. A "yea" was a vote supporting a larger federal role. (RC 48, p. 1035)

4. Voting Rights. The most comprehensive voting rights legislation in 90 years was the Voting Rights Act of 1965, aimed at securing the right to vote to Negroes by suspending state literacy and other tests and using federal registrars under certain conditions. The Senate May 26 passed the measure, 77-19: R 30-2; D 47-17 (ND 42-0; SD 5-17). Johnson in favor. A "yea" was a vote supporting a larger federal role. (RC 78, p. 1042)

5. Regional Development. One provision of the Public Works and Economic Development Act of 1965, a broad measure designed to stimulate growth in economically depressed areas, authorized payment of 2 percentage points of interest costs on businesses' private loans for construction of industrial plants in redevelopment areas. The Senate May 27 considered an amendment to delete this provision. The amendment was rejected, 25-39: R 18-1; D 7-38 (ND 1-29; SD 6-9). Johnson opposed. A "yea" was a vote opposing a larger federal role. (RC 80, p. 1043)

6. Medicare. A top-priority Administration measure was the medical-care-for-the-aged program, consisting of a compulsory health insurance plan financed by Social Security and a supplementary voluntary health care program, the latter based on Republican proposals. Before passing the bill, the Senate July 9 voted on an amendment to delete both these provisions from the Social Security Amendments of 1965. The amendment was rejected, 26-64: R 18-11; D 8-53 (ND 0-43; SD 8-10). Johnson opposed. A "yea" was a vote opposing a larger federal role. (RC 145, p. 1056)

7. Rent Supplements. A hotly debated provision of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1965 established a program of rent supplements for low-income families as part of the Act's extension of laws relating to public housing, urban renewal and community facilities. The Senate July 15 considered an amendment to delete the rent supplements provision. The amendment was rejected, 40-47: R 24-5; D 16-42 (ND 6-35; SD 10-7). Johnson opposed. A "yea" was a vote opposing a larger federal role. (RC 159, p. 1059)

8. Cold War GI Bill. The perennial issue of extending GI Bill benefits to veterans inducted into the armed services after Jan. 31, 1955, arose in the Senate July 19. Although passed there, the Cold War Veterans' Readjustment Assistance Act was not acted upon in the House. The Senate passage vote, 69-17: R 18-13; D 51-4 (ND 38-1; SD 13-3). Johnson opposed. A "yea" was a vote supporting a larger federal role. (RC 166, p. 1060)

9. Housing Department. The Administration's successful efforts in obtaining passage of the Department of Housing and Urban Development Act established the first new cabinet-level Department since Health, Education and Welfare was established in 1953. The Senate Aug. 11 passed its version of the Administration measure, 57-33: R 10-19; D 47-14 (ND 39-2; SD 8-12). Johnson in favor. A "yea" was a vote supporting a larger federal role. (RC 179, p. 1064)

10. Antipoverty. A confrontation on the principles of state and federal roles in carrying out the antipoverty programs of the Economic Opportunity Amendments of 1965 occurred Aug. 17 in the Senate. The issue was the power of state Governors to veto certain federal antipoverty programs in their states, and the Senate voted on an amendment to reinstate that veto power. The amendment was rejected in a tie vote, 45-45: R 29-2; D 16-43 (ND 5-35; SD 11-8). Johnson no position. A "yea" was a vote opposed to a larger federal role. (RC 184, p. 1065)

11. College Aid. A measure strongly sought by the Administration was the Higher Education Act of 1965, providing federal financial assistance to institutions of higher learning and scholarships for students attending them. After accepting five amendments to the measure, the Senate Sept. 2 voted on passage. The passage vote, 79-3: R 25-0; D 54-3 (ND 39-0; SD 15-3). Johnson in favor. A "yea" was a vote supporting a larger federal role. (RC 215, p. 1071)

12. Highway Beauty. Sometimes called "Lady Bird's bill," because of the First Lady's interest in the legislation, the Highway Beautification Act of 1965 authorized expenditures of $320 million for federal-state programs to control or remove billboards and junkyards from interstate and primary highways. The Senate Sept. 16 passed the bill, 63-14: R 16-8; D 47-6 (ND 38-0; SD 9-6). Johnson in favor. A "yea" was a vote supporting a larger federal role. (RC 231, p. 1074)

HOUSE ROLL CALLS

1. Appalachia. A sweeping Administration measure to revitalize the economy of an 11-state region was the Appalachian Regional Development Act of 1965, which the House March 3 passed and cleared for the President, the first major "Great Society" measure to be enacted. The passage vote, 257-165: R 25-109; D 232-56 (ND 173-15; SD 59-41). Johnson in favor. A "yea" was a vote supporting a larger federal role. (RC 15, p. 940)

2. School Aid. After defeating Republican bids to alter the bill, the House March 26 passed the Administration's top-priority Elementary and Secondary Education Act of 1965, a three-year program to improve school districts in impoverished areas. The passage vote, 263-153: R 35-96; D 228-57 (ND 187-3; SD 41-54). Johnson in favor. A "yea" was a vote supporting a larger federal role. (RC 26, p. 946)

3. Medicare. For the first time in its history, the House April 8 passed a compulsory medical care program based on Social Security contributions. The subject had been a controversial one for about 25 years. The passage vote on a program of medical care for the aged, 313-115: R 65-73; D 248-42 (ND 189-2; SD 59-40). Johnson in favor. A "yea" was a vote supporting a larger federal role. (RC 35, p. 950)

4. Housing Department. The first cabinet-level Department since Health, Education and Welfare's appearance in 1953 was established by the Department of Housing and Urban Development Act, which brought together various agencies dealing with urban affairs. The House June 16 passed the bill, 217-184: R 9-118; D 208-66 (ND 170-10; SD 38-56). Johnson in favor. A "yea" was a vote supporting a larger federal role. (RC 71, p. 970)

5. Rent Supplements. A provision for payment of rent supplements to low-income families briefly held up passage of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1965 in the House June 30 as it voted on a motion to recommit the bill to committee with instructions to delete the provision. The motion was rejected, 202-208: R 130-4; D 72-204 (ND 21-163; SD 51-41). Johnson opposed. A "yea" was a vote opposing a larger federal role. (RC 80, p. 974)

6. Voting Rights. The historic Voting Rights Act of 1965, the most sweeping voting legislation in 90 years, was aimed at securing the right of Negroes to vote by suspending state literacy and other tests and sending federal registrars into states under certain conditions. The House July 9 rejected a Republican substitute, added a ban on poll taxes and voted for passage, 333-85: R 112-24; D 221-61 (ND 188-1; SD 33-60). Johnson in favor. A "yea" was a vote supporting a larger federal role. (RC 87, p. 976)

7. Antipoverty. The issue for the House July 22, as it considered the Economic Opportunity Amendments of 1965, was whether state Governors should have veto power over certain federal antipoverty programs in their states. The House voted on a motion to recommit the measure to committee with instructions to delete a provision empowering federal officials to override a Governor's veto and to cut in half the authorized appropriation. The motion was rejected, 178-227: R 121-13; D 57-214 (ND 6-174; SD 51-40). Johnson opposed. A "yea" was a vote opposing a larger federal role. (RC 94, p. 980)

8. Right-To-Work. Heavy Administration pressure and an all-out effort by organized labor obtained passage in the House July 28 of a measure repealing Section 14(b) of the Taft-Hartley Act, a provision permitting states to pass "right-to-work" laws that barred union shops. The measure later was shelved after filibuster in the Senate, resulting in one of President Johnson's major legislative setbacks. The House passage vote, 221-203: R 21-117; D 200-86 (ND 182-8; SD 18-78). Johnson in favor. A "yea" was a vote supporting a larger federal role. (RC 101, p. 982)

9. College Aid. The Higher Education Act of 1965, providing federal financial assistance to institutions of higher learning as well as scholarships to students attending them, was high on the list of legislation most wanted by the Administration. The House Aug. 26 voted on the bill, approving for the first time federal scholarships for undergraduates. The passage vote, 368-22: R 113-13; D 255-9 (ND 176-0; SD 79-9). Johnson in favor. A "yea" was a vote supporting a larger federal role. (RC 126, p. 994)

10. Arts and Humanities. Extension of federal aid to the visual and performing arts and for scholarship in the humanities was effected through a measure establishing the National Foundation on the Arts and Humanities. The House Sept. 15 voted on a motion to recommit (kill) the bill. The motion was rejected 128-251: R 79-44; D 49-207 (ND 5-170; SD 44-37). Johnson opposed. A "yea" was a vote opposing a larger federal role. (RC 154, p. 1002)

11. Air Pollution. The House version of the Clean Air and Waste Disposal Acts of 1965 included the Senate-approved provision directing the Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare to set standards to control emissions from new motor vehicles and other engines, and it more than doubled the Senate's appropriation authorization for research on disposal of solid waste. The House Sept. 24 voted for passage, 294-4: R 90-2; D 204-2 (ND 135-0; SD 69-2). Johnson in favor. A "yea" was a vote supporting a larger federal role. (RC 169, p. 1008)

12. Highway Beauty. A favorite measure of both the President and the First Lady was the Highway Beautification Act of 1965, which provided for the control or removal of billboards and junkyards along interstate and primary highways. After rejecting a motion to recommit to committee, with instructions to give states authority to determine in which zones the controls would apply, the House Oct. 7 voted for passage. The passage vote, 245-138: R 26-89; D 219-49 (ND 159-21; SD 60-28). Johnson in favor. A "yea" was a vote supporting a larger federal role. (RC 189, p. 1016)

13. Teacher Corps. When the House first passed the Higher Education Act of 1965 (see above), the measure did not include a provision for a National Teacher Corps, to consist of experienced teachers and teacher-interns to assist faculty in schools attended largely by children from low-income families. That provision was included in the conference report, which the House Oct. 20 considered. The House voted on a motion to send the bill back to conference with instructions to delete the Teacher Corps provision. The motion was rejected, 152-226: R 111-7; D 41-219 (ND 2-172; SD 39-47). Johnson opposed. A "yea" was a vote opposing a larger federal role. (RC 196, p. 1020)

CQ Fact Sheet On Voting Participation, On the Record

AVERAGE CONGRESSMAN VOTED ON 87% OF '65 ROLL CALLS

Individual participation in roll-call votes for the first session of the 89th Congress was slightly higher than that of recent years. The average Member voted "yea" or "nay" on 87 percent of the roll-call votes taken in 1965 -- compared with 85 percent in 1964, 84 percent in 1963, and 82 percent in 1962.

High voting participation has characterized post-Presidential-election years. The average Congressman voted "yea" or "nay" on 87.4 percent of roll-call votes taken in 1953, 88 percent in 1957, and 88 percent in 1961.

Rep. Herman Toll (D Pa.), because of illness, did not vote on a single roll call in 1965. The lowest Republican House score (37 percent), made by Rep. John V. Lindsay (R N.Y.), can be attributed to his campaign for Mayor of New York and is comparable to the scores of Presidential candidates Barry Goldwater in 1964 (28 percent) and John F. Kennedy in 1960 (35 percent).

Congressional Quarterly's tabulation was based on all 258 roll calls in the Senate and all 201 in the House in 1965. (All votes on legislation are included. Quorum calls are excluded.) In the Senate the composite score for all Democrats was 84 percent; for Republicans 87 percent. In the House the score for both the Democrats and the Republicans was 87 percent. The average score for Democrats in both chambers was 87 percent; for Republicans, 87 percent. One Republican in the Senate, Margaret Chase Smith (Maine), scored 100 percent. The top-ranking Senate Democrat, William Proxmire (Wis.), voted on 99 percent of the roll calls. In the House 13 Democrats and 2 Republicans had perfect scores.

A Member's Voting Participation score, as computed by CQ, is the only available means of charting his attendance. It is a rough measure, largely because roll-call votes are rarely taken when absenteeism is high. The CQ score measures the percentage of the total roll calls on which a Member cast "yea" or "nay" votes.

The Senate in 1965 met for 177 days -- nine fewer than in 1964 -- and took 47 fewer roll-call votes. The House met for 173 days -- 25 more than in 1964 -- and took 88 more roll-call votes.

Absences

Failures to vote often may be traced to conflicting duties and illnesses. Among those absent for a day or more in 1965 because of their illness or illness or death in their families were:

Senate Democrats: Fulbright (Ark.), Smathers (Fla.), Russell (Ga.), McCarthy (Minn.), Symington (Mo.), Anderson and Montoya (N.M.), Ervin (N.C.), Monroney (Okla.), McGovern (S.D.), Yarborough (Texas), Byrd (Va.), Magnuson (Wash.), Senate Republicans: Kuchel (Calif.), Jordan (Idaho), Dirksen (Ill.), Pearson (Kan.), Curtis (Neb.).

House Democrats: Jones and Andrews (Ala.), King (Calif.), McVicker (Colo.), Matsunaga (Hawaii), O'Hara (Ill.), Hebert (La.), Farnum (Mich.), Colmer (Miss.), Carey, Resnick, and Rooney (N.Y.), Kornegay and Bonner (N.C.), Kirwan (Ohio), Green (Ore.), Albert (Okla.), Holland and Toll (Pa.), Rivers (S.C.), Kee (W.Va.), Thomas (Texas). House Republicans: Baldwin and Hosmer (Calif.), Harvey and Halleck (Ind.), Martin (Mass.), Widnall and Cahill (N.J.), Bolton, Bow, and Harsha (Ohio).

Record Highs

Perfect Voting Participation scores over a number of years are rare in both chambers. Sen. Margaret Chase Smith (R Maine) holds the Senate record -- by the end of 1965 she had cast 2,148 consecutive votes, not missing one since June 1955.

Mrs. Smith's record is topped by the all-time record holder in the House, Rep. Charles E. Bennett (D Fla.), who has served in the House since 1949 and last missed a roll-call vote in 1951. Runner-up in the House is Rep. William H. Natcher (D Ky.), who has never missed a roll-call vote since coming to Congress in 1953. Rep. Ken Hechler (D W.Va.), who served his first term in 1959, has not missed a vote since June of that year.

Definitions

VOTING PARTICIPATION -- Percentage of roll-call votes on which Congressman votes "yea" or "nay." Failures to vote "yea" or "nay" lower scores -- even if the Congressman votes "present," enters a pair, announces his stand in the Congressional Record, or answers the CQ Poll. Only votes of "yea" or "nay" directly affect the outcome of a roll call. Voting Participation is the closest approach to an attendance record, but it is only an approximation. A Congressman may be present and nevertheless decline to vote "yea" or "nay" -- usually because he has entered a pair with an absent Member.

ON THE RECORD -- Percentage of roll-call votes on which Congressman makes his position known by voting "yea" or "nay," entering a live pair, announcing his stand, or answering the CQ Poll. Scores are lowered by votes of "present" and by general pairs -- as well as by complete silence on the issue. Votes of "present" and general pairs are not expressions of opinion. On the Record does not measure the effectiveness of a Congressman in determining the outcome of roll calls, but it does show how frequently he tells his constituents and the general public where he stands on specific issues. Even if he must be absent, a Congressman can go On the Record.

Pairs are used to cancel out the effect of absences. A Congressman who expects to be absent for a roll call pairs off with another Congressman, both of them agreeing not to vote. A live pair concerns one or several specific issues. A Congressman who would vote "yea" pairs with a Congressman who would vote "nay." Thus, both announce their stands. A general pair is a more arbitrary matching of absent Congressmen, not involving announcement of their stands.

The CQ Poll gives absent Congressmen the opportunity to announce their stands on roll calls. On all roll calls, CQ sends out ballots asking Congressmen how they would have voted if they had been present.

ON THE RECORD

In addition to scores on each Member's participation in roll-call votes, Congressional Quarterly also records, in its On the Record study, how often each Member made public his position on issues that were brought to roll-call votes. (See definitions) Senators in 1965 made their position known on an average of 96 percent of the roll-call votes (Republicans 98 percent; Democrats 95 percent). Representatives also made public their position on an average of 96 percent of the votes (Republicans 96 percent; Democrats 95 percent). Here are the individual On the Record scores for 1965:

CQ Fact Sheet — On Senate Voting Patterns

SAME-STATE SENATORS DISAGREE ON 25 PERCENT OF VOTES

United States Senators from the same state disagreed on an average of 25 percent of the roll-call votes in 1965. Congressional Quarterly reviewed the 258 Senate roll calls taken during the first session of the 89th Congress and found that same-state Senators disagreed as often as 63 percent (Utah and Wyoming) and as seldom as 6 percent (Rhode Island).

The results were similar in 1964, when the average disagreement score between Senators of the same state was 22 percent. The highest 1964 disagreement score was 65 percent (New Mexico), and the lowest was 4 percent (Alabama and North Carolina).

In states where both Senators were Republicans, the Senators took the same stand on an average of 82 percent of the roll calls during 1965, compared with 84 percent in 1964. Democratic Senators from the same state agreed 83 percent of the time in 1965, compared with 85 percent in 1964.

As in the past, the greatest differences of opinion between same-state Senators were between those of different parties. These Senators disagreed on 42 percent of the roll calls in 1965, compared with 38 percent in 1964.

In the 1965 Congressional session, there were 16 "mixed" Senate delegations and 26 Democratic and 8 Republican delegations.

Ground Rules

DISAGREEMENT SCORE -- Percent of roll-call votes on which Senators from the same state took opposite sides by either voting, announcing their stands or answering a CQ poll. Roll calls on which one or both Senators failed to take a stand were excluded from computation. Therefore, the percentage base varied from state to state.

Maryland (Brewster - Tydings)	92
Minnesota (McCarthy - Mondale)	92
Virginia (Byrd - Robertson)	92
Washington (Jackson - Magnuson)	92

Mixed

New Jersey (Williams - Case)	84%
South Carolina (Russell - Thurmond)	82
New York (Kennedy - Javits)	81

Disagreement

Senate delegations that scored highest in "Disagreement" during the first session of the 89th Congress by taking opposite sides on roll-call votes:

Solid Republican

	Percent of Disagreement
California (Kuchel - Murphy)	29%
Delaware (Boggs - Williams)	26
Kentucky (Cooper - Morton)	24

Solid Democratic

Ohio (Lausche - Young)	46
Arkansas (Fulbright - McClellan)	38

How Much Senators Disagreed in 1965 and 1964

1. DISAGREEMENT SCORE, 1965 -- Percentage of roll-call votes in 1965 on which a state's Senators took opposite sides in voting, announcing their stands, or in answering a CQ Poll. Each delegation's score was based on those roll calls -- among the 258 taken in 1965 -- on which both Senators took a position.

2. DISAGREEMENT SCORE, 1964 -- Percentage of roll-call votes in 1964 on which a state's Senators took opposite sides in voting, announcing their stands, or in answering a CQ Poll. Each delegation's score was based on those roll calls -- among the 305 taken in 1964 -- on which both Senators took a position.

CQ Fact Sheet On Party Unity

PARTISAN DIVISIONS CENTER ON 'GREAT SOCIETY' PROGRAMS

Senate and House Members in 1965 divided along party lines on 213 of the 459 roll-call votes, or 46 percent of the time, according to the annual CQ examination of "Party Unity" voting.

Partisan divisions appeared most frequently over issues involving President Johnson's "Great Society" program, issues such as housing and urban development, economic opportunity legislation, medical care financed by Social Security and the anti-poverty programs generally. Party-line voting was equally apparent (but less frequent) over legislation to raise the debt limit, to repeal right-to-work laws and to propose a constitutional amendment on apportionment of state legislatures.

On some issues, such as highway beautification, voting rights and "Cold War" veterans benefits, voting in one or both chambers followed party lines during roll calls on motions, amendments or other preliminary matters, but swung to a bipartisan complexion on passage of the legislation.

Partisan voting was more recurrent in the House, where Members divided on 105 of the 201 roll-call votes, or 52 percent of the time. These divisions occurred over "Great Society" issues as well as over contested elections of Members and legislation on such matters as coinage, agriculture, and rural water and sanitation. Similar partisan divisions appeared on 42 percent of the Senate's 258 roll calls in 1965.

Party Discipline

In keeping with tradition, party-line voting was less than monolithic in Congress in 1965. The degree of party cohesion, as was customary, depended on such factors as sectional or local interests, individual philosophic differences and effectiveness of party leadership.

The average Democrat voted with his party's majority 69 percent of the time -- 63 percent in the Senate and 70 percent in the House. The average Republican voted with his party's majority 70 percent of the time -- 68 percent in the Senate and 71 percent in the House. Those percentages were virtually the same as in 1964.

Democrats led Republicans slightly in crossing party lines on Party Unity votes. The average Democrat voted with Republicans 19 percent of the time -- 21 percent in the Senate and 18 percent in the House -- while the average Republican voted with Democrats 17 percent of the time -- 19 percent in the Senate and 17 percent in the House. Those percentages also paralleled the 1964 figures. (Figures do not add to 100 percent because of Members' failure to vote on all roll calls.)

Northern Democrats in the Senate voted with their party 72 percent of the time on Party Unity votes, opposing it 13 percent of the time, while Southern Democrats in the Senate voted with their party 45 percent of the time, opposing it 37 percent of the time. In the House, Northern Democrats supported their party 82 percent of the time, opposing it only 7 percent of the time, while Southern Democrats scored support and opposition percentages of 48 and 40, respectively. Northern Republicans in the House voted with their party's majority 69 percent of the time, while Southern Republicans proved even more "Republican" than their Northern colleagues, voting with their party 83 percent of the time.

Freshman Democrats in Congress scored 80 percent in supporting their party, opposing it on 12 percent of the Party Unity votes.

Individual Performances

For the second year in a row on CQ Party Unity scores, freshman Democratic Senator Inouye (Hawaii) led Democratic Senators by supporting his party 92 percent of the time. Close behind were two newcomers, Mondale (Minn.) and Bass (Tenn.).

Fannin (Ariz.) and Tower (Texas), Republican Senators close to defeated 1964 Presidential candidate Barry Goldwater, had high Party Support scores of 90 and 85 percent, respectively. Other names in the Republicans' high-scoring Party Unity group included Jordan (Idaho), Mundt (S.D.) and Williams (Del.), all of whom have been among their party's most consistent supporters since 1960.

Senators scoring high in opposing their party's stand also included repeaters from previous years. Among Democratic Senators, these were Robertson (Va.), Lausche (Ohio) and Eastland (Miss.). Among Republicans, the top three Senators opposing their party most frequently in 1964 remained identical in 1965 -- Case (N.J.), Javits (N.Y.) and Smith (Maine), in that order. With the defeat of Keating (N.Y.), Minority Whip Kuchel (Calif.) moved into the fourth position and the list was joined by Fong (Hawaii). Sen. Case's opposition to his party rose significantly, from 56 percent in 1964 to 70 percent in 1965.

Among House Democrats, the highest Party Unity support score was registered by Karsten (Mo.), followed closely by two freshmen, Annunzio (Ill.) and McGrath

Definitions

- PARTY UNITY ROLL CALLS -- Roll-call votes that split the parties, a majority of voting Democrats opposing a majority of voting Republicans. Roll calls on which either party divides evenly are excluded.
- PARTY UNITY SCORES -- Percentage of Party Unity roll calls on which a Member votes "yea" or "nay" in agreement with a majority of his party. Failure to vote, even if a Member announces his stand, lowers his score.
- OPPOSITION TO PARTY SCORES -- Percentage of Party Unity roll calls on which a Member votes "yea" or "nay" in disagreement with a majority of his party. A Member's Party Unity and Opposition to Party scores add to 100 percent only if he voted on all Party Unity roll calls.

(N.J.). Other consistent high-scoring Democrats were Gonzalez (Texas), McFall (Calif.), Price (Ill.), Murphy (Ill.) and Green (Pa.). Republican House Members scoring high in support of their party included Reid (Ill.), Gross (Iowa), Devine (Ohio) and Belcher (Okla.).

The greatest opposition to their own party positions in the House came from conservative Southern Democrats and liberal Northern Republicans. The Democrats included Satterfield (Va.), Williams (Miss.) and three other members of the Virginia delegation -- Marsh, Tuck and Abbitt. A member of the Texas delegation, Rep. Dowdy (D), opposed his party on 75 percent of the roll-call votes. Most consistent Republican opponents of their own party's position in the House were Reid (N.Y.) (whose opposition score shot up from 33 percent in 1963 to 71 percent in 1965) and other repeaters from previous years -- Halpern (N.Y.), Horton (N.Y.), Tupper (Maine) and Schweiker (Pa.). Though he was often absent campaigning for Mayor of New York, Rep. Lindsay (R) demonstrated his independence by supporting his party on only 6 percent of the roll calls and opposing the GOP majority position on 31 percent. He did not participate in the remaining 63 percent of the Party Unity votes.

Party Leadership

Although House Republicans had a new Minority Leader, Ford (Mich.), and Senate Democrats had a new Majority Whip, Long (La.), these changes had no appreciable effect on over-all party performances. Senate Democrats supported their party 63 percent of the time in 1965, compared to 61 percent in 1964, while House Republicans supported their party 71 percent of the time in each year. By the same token, the opposition of Senate Democrats to their own party position was 21 percent in 1965, close to the 23 percent figure in 1964, while it held steady at 17 percent among House Republicans in both years. (For 1964 scores, see 1964 Almanac p. 740)

Democrats in this type; Republicans in italics

(a) Albert W. Watson became a Republican Jan. 12, 1965. Score for the 88th Congress is based on his votes as a Democrat.

CQ Fact Sheet On Bipartisan Voting

PARTY MAJORITIES AGREED ON MORE THAN HALF OF VOTES

Democrats and Republicans in Congress agreed with each other more than half the time on roll-call votes in 1965.

A majority of voting Democrats and a majority of voting Republicans agreed on 54 percent of 459 roll calls, according to the annual Congressional Quarterly study of bipartisan voting. Bipartisan agreement in 1965 represented a slight rise over 1964, when a majority of each party voted together on 49.6 percent of 308 roll calls.

Bipartisan agreement appeared most frequently over foreign policy and defense matters. Bipartisan agreement also appeared often on appropriations bills and on roll calls where there was little dispute or where the main disputes were settled in previous votes or in committee. Bipartisan voting also settled issues dealing with federal aid to education, highway beautification, water pollution control, excise tax reductions, voting rights, Presidential continuity and increases in federal employees' pay, GI benefits and veterans' pensions.

Bipartisan voting occurred most frequently in the Senate -- on 58 percent of the roll calls (150 out of 258). Bipartisan voting in the House occurred in 48 percent of the roll calls (96 out of 201).

The average Democrat voted with the bipartisan majorities 74 percent of the time and opposed them 11 percent of the time. The average Republican supported bipartisan majorities 73 percent of the time and voted against them 13 percent of the time.

Voting Highlights

Among other findings of the 1965 CQ study:

Independent Voting. Northern Democrats in the Senate supported bipartisan majorities 71 percent of the time and opposed them 14 percent of the time. Northern Democrats in the House registered 78-percent support and 7-percent opposition on bipartisan votes.

Southern Democrats in the Senate supported bipartisan majorities 59 percent of the time and opposed them 23 percent of the time. Southern House Democrats registered slighter higher bipartisan support -- 73-percent support and 12-percent opposition.

Most of the Republicans with the highest bipartisan support in both chambers were moderate and liberal, while the highest bipartisan opposition by Republicans in both chambers was shown by conservatives.

Unanimous Voting. There were 20 unanimous votes in the Senate and 25 in the House. Among the major items which the Senate approved unanimously were: Presidential continuity, establishment of a joint committee to study Congressional organization, authorization of fiscal 1966 funds for military research and equipment procurement, condemnation of alleged religious persecution in Russia, provision of a military pay increase, fiscal 1966 funds authorization for military construction, railroad retirement annuities for wives, and provision of a federal employee salary raise. The Senate also unanimously ratified six treaties or protocols on foreign policy matters and unanimously agreed to earmark foreign aid funds for an Organization of American States military force.

Unanimous votes in the House approved: federal drug controls, water resources development, extension of the Manpower Development and Training Act, federal water pollution controls, construction of a new U.S. chancery in Saigon, extension of health services for migrant workers, aid to mental health centers, federal loans and loan guarantees to vocational students, fiscal 1966 funds authorization for military construction, fiscal 1966 Defense Department appropriations, military pay increases, strengthening of law enforcement training and techniques, prisoner rehabilitation, federal employee and disabled veterans' pensions raises, funds authorization for the President's crime commissions and provision for GI life insurance.

Presidential Stands. A majority of Republicans joined a majority of Democrats to give the President 41 victories and four losses in the House. In the Senate, bipartisan votes supported the President's position 91 times and defeated his position seven times.

Bipartisan votes in both chambers cleared legislation raising military salaries far above the level proposed by the President. Similarly in the House, bipartisan votes supported Administration-opposed increases in federal employee retirement pensions and federal employee salaries. In the Senate, a bipartisan majority passed legislation providing "Cold War" GI benefits, which the President opposed. The Senate also rejected by bipartisan vote an Administration-backed proposal to reduce to $50 the amount of duty-free goods an American traveler was allowed. On all these votes the President's "economy" stand was overridden by Congress.

Definitions

- BIPARTISAN ROLL CALLS -- Roll-call votes on which a majority of voting Democrats and a majority of voting Republicans agreed.
- BIPARTISAN SUPPORT SCORES -- Percentage of bipartisan roll calls on which a Member votes "yea" or "nay" in agreement with the bipartisan majority. Failures to vote, even if a Member announces his stand, lower his score.
- BIPARTISAN OPPOSITION SCORES -- Percentage of bipartisan roll calls on which a Member votes "yea" or "nay" in opposition to the bipartisan majorities. A Member's Support and Opposition scores add to 100 percent only if he voted on all bipartisan roll calls. For names of Members who missed one or more 1965 roll calls because of their illness or illness in their families, see Voting Participation, page 1119.

Within each category and subcategory are Senate bills in numerical order, followed by House bills.

Bills introduced give the bill number, brief description of provisions, sponsor's name, date of introduction and committee to which each bill was assigned.

Bills sponsored by more than one Senator are listed under the first sponsor, with additional sponsors also listed.

In the House identical bills are sponsored by several Members, but each bill has only one sponsor and one number. In most cases only the first bill introduced -- that with the lowest bill number -- is described in full. Later bills that are identical in nature usually are cited back to the earliest bill.

Bills Acted On give the Public Law reference, where appropriate. For bills that did not become law, the description includes action taken by committees and on the floor of either house.

The pieces of public legislation described are of four kinds -- bills and joint resolutions which can become public law; concurrent resolutions, needing approval by both House and Senate; and simple resolutions, concerning only one chamber. Concurrent and simple resolutions do not become law.
